What About Silver?
More Taxes? What Kind?
What Japan Did in China
We Need Currency

—By Arthur Brisbane—

WHAT WILL BE the results of England's gold step, saying to the pound, "Go where you will. Since I haven't the gold, I cannot give you gold backing?" Everybody asks that question, nobody answers it.

What would result if many other nations should leave France and Uncle Sam sitting, each on a huge gold pile, the other nations saying, "You have the gold, KEEP it. ENJOY it. We shall get along without it."

What would happen to silver in that case?

You can imagine the ghost of William Jennings Bryan returning to ask "Did somebody mention silver?" It would surprise him to hear serious Englishmen saying, as they do say, "Bryan was right, but was ahead of his time. The value of silver must be restored. There is not enough gold to finance the business of the world. But there is enough silver and it must be used."

The extraordinary thing is that nobody seems to know anything. It is all a guessing contest. Our great financiers are as much puzzled as spring chickens when the first snow comes. You have seen them putting one foot in the snow, taking it out again and wondering.

Secretary Mellon is making up his mind about asking Congress for increased taxes. Income taxes are high enough, in the opinion of those that pay the taxes.

Retailers oppose a sales tax, which would be paid by the "little people." But the little people would pay without realizing it.

It is to that extent "painless taxation."

Senator Borah says that Japan is breaking the peace pact, determined "to employ armies wherever the fertile mind of some ambitious schemer can find an aggressor."

When Senator Borah returns to Washington he will learn that Japan's action in Manchuria has not always been fairly presented.

The government of Japan did not break loose in Mukden, shooting Chinese, taking the city. That was done, on their own account, by Japanese soldiers, infuriated at the shooting of a Japanese officer and two soldiers.

The three men in the regular Japanese army, exercising their legitimate functions, were stood against a wall and shot by Chinese, in American gangster fashion. Then Japanese officers and soldiers started.

Americans old enough to remember the sinking of the Maine know that even peace-loving westerners sometimes become excited. The problem is to smooth things over without denying justice to China or humiliating the Japanese.

Many feel that reasonable "inflation" or increase of currency, without weakening the gold standard, would help this country. It may be absolutely necessary.

Our Federal Reserve, admirable institution, unfortunately doesn't work well in a depression. It will discount for banks certain kinds of commercial paper, extremely plentiful in boom times. But in dull times the amount of that paper and its discounting by the Federal Reserve dwindles. The Federal Reserve in that respect is something like a watch dog that barks until a burglar comes, and then stops barking.

A way may be found to make Federal Reserve discounts more flexible, enabling those that have absolutely good security to get currency for it within reason.

WE NEED MORE MONEY. Many will say amen to that.

Prime Minister Laval of France will come here to talk about this and that and money, including gold. He will be received politely by this government and its President. But the good old days have changed at Washington. The latch string on the treasury has been pulled inside.

The United States will be glad to discuss everything with Monsieur Laval and especially glad to get his advice, for he knows more about finance and business than we do. Any country that can reduce the value of a twenty-cent franc to four cents, and accumulate four billions in gold, understands business.

Monsieur Laval will find Uncle Sam something like the British gentleman who said that he ate well and slept well, but

GIRLS FAINT IN BOILER BLAST

200 Given Scare in Washington St. Building; Roar Attracts Crowd

Explosion of a gas boiler startled more than 200 employes in the Jaynes Building at 1000 Washington st., today, and caused damage estimated at $1000 in the Shaughnessy Knitting Co., on the sixth floor.

The 150 employes of the knitting factory, half of whom are girls, received a real fright and a few of the girls fainted. Some of the others started to run from the plant but returned when assured the danger was over.

Max Lincke of Warrenton st., South End, a machinist, who was lighting the heater when the explosion occurred, escaped unhurt, although everything around him was wrecked.

Five windows were blown out and the roar attracted a crowd. Manager J. A. Malkon of the knitting plant said the crash and quaking of the floor made the factory workers think an airplane had plunged through the roof.

Miss Helen Smith of Humboldt pl., South Boston, was one of the girls who fainted. A forelady revived her. The building houses half a dozen concerns on its eight floors.

"I FOUGHT TO SAVE HIM!"

ROPE HELD COLLINGS IN FIGHT FOR LIFE

Bound Tight to Escape, Says Medical Witness at Heated Hearing

By Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

New York, Sept. 26—While Dr. Otto H. Schultz was telling at the coroner's inquest in Huntington, L. I., that Benjamin P. Collings, pirate murder victim, was alive when thrown into the sea and drowned because he was tied hand and foot, the mysterious nurse who was supposed to have secret knowledge of the crime, gave herself up to police in Jersey City and said she had nothing to tell.

This marked the overturn of a case which it was thought would have put the police on a definite trail.

INQUEST IN UPROAR

The nurse, Leonora Adveria Mutter, had barricaded herself in her apartment for hours to avoid police.

The report was she knew of two men who had a motive for killing Collings.

After lengthy questioning, Asst. Dist.-Atty. Munder sent this word from Jersey City:

"We didn't get any information from her and I don't believe she had any. I think a wrong construction was placed on words she uttered."

The inquest was suddenly adjourned after two witnesses had been heard. Herbert Collings told how he identified the body of his brother, and then Dr. Schultz was called.

Dr. Schultz threw the spectators into gales of laughter. He seemed

ARMY SCORES IN FIRST PERIOD

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—Army opened the 1931 football campaign today against Ohio Northern on a field wet with morning rains. The sky was dark and the air misty.

FIRST PERIOD

Ray Stecker, ace of the Cadet backfield, galloped over the Ohio Northern goal after a 10-yard sweep around right end to score Army's first touchdown of the season early in the first quarter. He missed a place kick for the extra goal.

A forward pass from Stecker to Elliott, good for a 30-yard gain, put Stecker in position for his score.

WHARF BLAZE HALTS TRAFFIC

Traffic was badly jammed at Atlantic ave. and Commercial st. today as firemen battled a two-alarm fire in the four-story building at the end of Lewis Wharf.

Apparatus filled the intersection, completely blocking traffic for a time, while to add to the confusion the district was darkened by dense smoke from blazing paint and oil.

The fire, which drove about a score of occupants out of the structure, caused damage estimated by Fire Chief Henry Fox as about $8000. The cause was not determined.

It started in the basement where the Lewis Wharf Corp. has storerooms, and was discovered by employes, who sounded the automatic alarm. Two box alarms quickly followed.

Lieut. Walter Smith of Ladder 8, who was one of the first on the scene, was cut on the chin while leading a squad of firemen into the basement.

The flames and smoke barred entrance except from the elevator well and a narrow door at the rear of the building, but firemen wearing gas masks plunged into the cellar. The fire spread to the first floor, occupied by the General Warehouse Corp., but damage was chiefly in the basement.

Jack Pickford Has Chance to Recover

Beverly Hills, Cal., Sept. 26—An "even chance for recovery" was accorded by physicians today to Jack Pickford, former motion picture star, who is seriously ill at his home here. Dr. Carl Lewis declared Pickford is "holding his own." The brother of Mary Pickford became ill from a severe cold.

LILA DAMITA IN ELOPEMENT?

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 26 (INS)—Efforts were being made today to verify a report that Lily Damita had eloped.

Miss Damita, who is here preparing for a role in a new picture at United Artists studio left her Hollywood apartment last night, accompanied only by a maid. They departed in an automobile.

Miss Damita has been seen lately in company of Sidney Smith, who was divorced recently from the daughter of Grantland Rice, sports authority, at Reno.

"I am much too busy to think about getting married," Miss Damita said, when the rumor first became current.

It developed, however, that a few friends of the actress were under the belief that Miss Damita and Smith had been secretly married at a Mexican border point several days previous. She did not leave the customary note stating where she could be found in case the studio wished to communicate with her.

MARY IS BRIDE, M'DEVITT SAYS

"Met Mary in New York. Everything is fine."

This hasty letter was received today by a Boston relative from Deputy Sheriff Wm. A. McDevitt, who went to New York to seek his daughter, Mary, and Stephen G. Bigelow, to whom she was variously reported married and not married.

It is believed to indicate that the couple are married. McDevitt was on his way to his home on Sutherland rd., Brighton, today, with his brother, who accompanied him to New York.

Mrs. Joseph S. Bigelow of Cohasset, wealthy mother of the 36-year-old Harvard grad, still is unconvinced that her son is married.

She has maintained this stand since first public announcement of the marriage was made by Miss McDevitt at the Hotel Somerset on September 17. She said she has not heard from her son, who is now reported to be at Atlantic City with his "bride."

George H. Whitney of Milton, a friend of Bigelow, said he had not heard from the supposed bridegroom for a week or more and did not know where he was. Other friends said the same.

BEER-IN-A-MINUTE FOR THE THIRSTY OF BOSTON

BREWERIES SET TO TURN OUT REAL PRODUCT

Department of Labor Checking Employment That Would Be Provided in Boston

Boston breweries, dispensing near beer, are ready to supply the market on a moment's notice, if real beer is legalized.

Boston selling agencies of national brewing concerns also would be prepared to give instant service.

These facts were ascertained in view of disclosures at Washington that high government officials are investigating the probable effects on the nation's economic situation, if beer is legalized.

The Department of Agriculture is inquiring into the effect on farmers of an increased demand for malt, hops and barley. The Department of Labor is investigating the effect of unemployment in the brewing industry and allied trades, and Walter H. Newton, a Hoover secretary, has collected data on the whole subject.

These developments have been watched with keen interest by local brewers and all connected with the business.

HAFFENREFFER READY

Indications are that a checkup on employment and unemployment in the brewing industry is now going on in Boston, although officials here of the Department of Labor are reticent.

Theodore C. Haffenreffer, head of Haffenreffer & Co., which controls the New England Brewing Co. and operates the Boylston brewery in Jamaica Plain, said:

"We are ready and able to distribute strong beer on a moment's notice. All breweries make strong beer and de-alcoholize it to make the product popularly known as near beer. That is the regular process of manufacture.

"If the government legalized strong beer, it would simply mean the elimination of the final stage in the manufacture of the de-alcoholized product.

"We have no inside information, however, about the probability of beer being legalized. All we know is what is in the newspapers."

LEADER IN INDUSTRY

Mr. Haffenreffer is a member of the Boston park commission and is one of the country's outstanding figures in the brewing industry.

With the advent of Prohibition, he elected to continue in the business of making malt and hop beverages and has been successful.

Reports that near beer manufacturers were refusing orders for this product for more than four months ahead, because of "inside information" that beer would be permitted to be sold, were denied by Mr. Haffenreffer and officials of the Old Colony Brewing Co., and of the Anheuser-Busch selling agency.

Maid Guilty in Theft From Home

Miss Mary Fitzpatrick, alias Maizie Dermody, of 129 Carter st., Quincy, was found guilty in the Waltham District Court of larceny of silverware from a Watertown home where she was employed as a maid.

Judge Michael J. Connolly continued the case until December 17 for sentence.

About prohibition you will hear more and more as you approach the 1932 conventions. These things are to be remembered:

You can't change the prohibition law without the help of the House of Representatives and in that House there are only about 100 votes against prohibition. You can't change the law without the Senate, in which there are only about 25 votes against prohibition.

Representatives and senators elected on prohibition platforms intend to stick to their instructions and run no risk.

The American Legion, demanding a referendum, that legislators may know what their constituents want, NOW suggests one way out.

The American Legion sets a good example to some other Americans by voting against a new bonus proposal and new demands on the public pocketbook.

The Legion did not resent President Hoover's appeal to their patriotism and self denial. They appreciated his courage in making that appeal with 1932 so close at hand.

'BOSSY' STARTS FIGHT AGAINST HIS FOES

Demands Probe of Advertising Fees Paid to Paper; Plans to Publish "Asbestos"

Newburyport, Sept. 26—Mayor Andrew "Bossy" Gillis is Rome again and things have already started popping.

His first shot at the enemy was a demand for an investigation of prices paid for school advertising in the opposition newspaper.

He goes into court Monday to face a charge of causing a disturbance at his fight with President Twomey of the City Council.

Within a few days he will start his own newspaper, Asbestos.

FACES TWO INQUIRIES.

Thus he takes the center of the stage to combat the attacks of the opposition which during his absence made him the center of two investigations, one of waste in the highway department, the other of the price the city has paid for gasoline from the Gillis filling station.

Arriving last night from the American Legion convention at Detroit, which kept him from Newburyport for a week, "Bossy" was asked how he felt, and said:

"Feelin' fit as a fiddle and ready to play a tune on those boys."

Asked if he were aware of what had happened in his absence, he said he was. The highway department order which the city council passed called for a probe by the district attorney.

WINS TWO POINTS.

Twomey has been suspended from his job with an electric company since the fight with the mayor, which occurred last Saturday night, so that "Bossy" is one up on his political rival.

"Bossy" also went before the school committee last night regarding the advertising expenditures for space in the Newburyport Daily News. His demand for a probe was supported and the first skirmish was a Gillis victory.

Holds Secret

George H. Hartford, Jr., heir to millions, whose marital status remained a mystery at Harvard today, where he was supposed to enroll as a sophomore. Records show he was married in West Virginia in April.

HARTFORD HEIR IN NEW PUZZLE

The marital status of George Huntington Hartford, Jr., heir to chain store millions and supposedly a sophomore at Harvard, remained a mystery today at the university, where enrollment for the new term is in progress.

This despite records at Clarksburg, W. Va., show the youth was married April 18 to Miss Mary Elizabeth Eppling of Welch, W. Va. The revelation of his marriage came shortly after the millionaire youth's mother was sued by Mildred King Miss King, a student at the New England Conservatory of Music, asked for $100,000 which she claimed as compensation for delivering young Hartford from the clutches of a New York adventuress.

Hartford has not registered although he signified his intention last June of re-entering the university, and reserved quarters in Winthrop Hall. His effects were moved into Winthrop Hall last night.

Although schoolmates who knew him by sight have reported seeing him driving about Cambridge in a sporty roadster, Harvard officially knows nothing of his plans for the coming year. And registration ends Monday.

SENATOR WALSH LAUDS HEARST EDITORIAL

Might Well Be Made Part of Democratic Platform, He Declares

The editorial of William Randolph Hearst, in which he wrote that wage cuts would prolong the depression and called attention to the inflated capitalization of many corporations, was lauded today by U. S. Senator David I. Walsh.

Senator Walsh asserted that the editorial might well be made part of the Democratic party's national platform.

It defines the rights of wage-earners more clearly that any statement he has seen, he said.

WALSH'S STATEMENT

The comment of the senior Massachusetts senator follows:

"Mr. Hearst's editorial on wage cuts by stock-inflated corporations is a forceful and correct indictment of the inexcusable and unpardonable evil practices of many industrial corporations. It is heartening to have a man of the extensive business enterprises and wealth of Mr. Hearst speak out so candidly and courageously.

"To my thinking a financier or a statesman who could not forsee the catastrophe that the over-speculation and over-capitalization of recent years was certain to result in the present depression, was either grossly ignorant of economic principles or criminally indifferent to the public welfare.

BLAMES GOVERNMENT

"I have always claimed that the government should have foreseen and checked the organized selfishness and greed that is responsible for our present plight. I attribute the blame to government inaction more than to capitalistic greed.

"The editorial defines the right of the wage earner more directly and clearly than any statement heretofore called to my attention. The political and economic principles of this excellent editorial may be incorporated in the democratic platform."

Mrs. Patrick Campbell to Return to New York Stage

New York, Sept. 26—Scenes that represent some of the supreme moments in the history of the New York stage have been recalled by the return to this city of Mrs. Patrick Campbell, famed English actress.

She arrived on the S. S. Aquitania to revisit the country of some of her greatest triumphs.

Mrs. Campbell has a long list of stage triumphs to her credit. George Bernard Shaw wrote his masterpiece, "Pygmalion," for her portrayal. She was asked by the great Bernhardt to play Juliet opposite the latter's Romeo.

Helen Wills Moody Plans Serious Study of Etching

New York, Sept. 26—The hands of Helen Wills Moody, which seven times stroked her to the National Women's Tennis Championship, are going to take up the more intricate art of etching.

Her new art venture, which she plans to study in earnest, is partly the result of the popularity of drawings she exhibited at the Grand Central Art Galleries in April, 1930.

Mrs. Moody will visit the workshop of Peter Platt, an expert in etchings, who has printed the plates of American artists for years.

LAKE DRAGGED FOR WOMAN

Dennis, Sept. 26—Search was renewed today in the waters of Lake Scargo here for the body of Mrs. Maria Hobson, 38, Cape playhouse treasurer, who was drowned late Thursday night on a moonlight canoe ride.

A group of fishermen, headed by Benjamin Walters, continued the search after an all-day hunt yesterday failed to produce any trace of the body although two aviators circled over the lake to aid the searchers.

Mrs. Hobson met death late Thursday after she went for a ride on the lake with Mognes Petrie, 25, lighting technician at the Cape playhouse, after the couple attended a dinner party at the home of Mrs. Hayden Richardson.

According to Petrie's story, they struck a strong wind when they got away from the shelter of the shore and the frail canoe overturned when he attempted to turn around and return to shore.

He told state police that he had Mrs. Hobson hang on the overturned canoe while he attempted to push it toward shore, swimming. She lost her grip and clung to his neck as he attempted to rescue her. He said he broke her grip and she sank, and he was unable to rescue her, although he dived repeatedly.

Columbus, O., Sept. 26 (AP)—Holding that the pamphlet issued under auspices of the general federation of women's clubs by the George Washington Bi-Centennial Committee, was distasteful propaganda," the newly organized Federated Democratic Women of Ohio, in session here today, adopted a resolution publicly protesting against it.

The pamphlet drew a parallel between the careers of George Washington and President Hoover.

The Ohio women, in the resolution, said that "The parallel so clearly lends itself to a partisan interpretation it is certain to be distasteful to large numbers of loyal club women. This protest is issued as a warning to women who belong to supposedly non-partisan organizations not to permit themselves to become parties to such propaganda."

Seizures at Border

August the Vermont border customs

St. Albans, Vt., Sept. 26—During toms patrol seized 13,000 bottles of liquor and vehicles and merchandise valued at $6920, the collector of customs said tonight.

CHINA FOR FREE MANCHURIA

Peiping, China, Sept. 26 (AP)—J. G. Thomson, British General Manager of the Peiping-Mukden railroad, reported today to the British consul-general at Tientsin that Japanese airplanes had fired on a passenger train on which he and his family were riding Thursday. Two Chinese were killed.

Tokio, Sept. 26 (AP)—Tokio officials announced today that two separate movements had been proposed to establish independent states in Manchuria, but that neither was countenanced by Japan.

The Chinese delegation was represented as desirous of making Mukden the capital of a state independent of China and of assuming the political power of Chang Hsueh-Liang, governor of Manchuria and high official of the Chinese nationalist regime at Nanking.

Authorities said the Mongolians would like to make Khailar, a small city near the convergence of the Manchurian, Siberian and Mongolian borders, their capital.

$300,000 LENT TECH STUDENTS

More than $300,000, an amount far in excess of that in any previous year, has been granted in loans and scholarships to students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, it was announced today on the eve of the institute's opening on Monday for registration.

In addition to loans, more than 500 students have made arrangements for deferred payment of tuition, "reflecting," the Technology officials observe, "the present economic conditions throughout the country."

Classes at Technology will begin Tuesday, but on Monday afternoon President Karl T. Compton and a committee of the faculty will address the freshmen.

More than 200 freshmen who are attending Technology's sixth annual freshman camp at Lake Massapoag will be welcomed to the institute Monday, well acquainted with their classmates and members of the faculty and administration.

A large group of members of the faculty, with President Compton, spent today at the camp, and will remain for dinner tonight.

KEEN DRY FIGHT IN CONGRESS

Washington, Sept. 26 — The demand of the American Legion for a referendum on prohibition is expected by members of both the House and Senate to bring to the next session renewed agitation over the dry-law question.

Most of the members at present in Washington privately saw little chance for modification or repeal in the next session, but there was no doubt that the Legion's action in asking submission of the amendment to a referendum has stirred up new interest.

At present more than two-thirds of the House of Representatives is elected with prohibition support, and it is estimated that about three-fourths of the Senate is similarly named.

Ida Cannon Heads Social Workers

Miss Ida Cannon, in charge of social service work at the Massachusetts General Hospital, was elected president of the Massachusetts conference of social work at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, today.

Other officers chosen were: The Rev. Thomas Reynolds, director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau, first vice-president; Theodora A. Lothrop, executive secretary of the M. S. P. C. C., second vice-president; Howard C. Raymond of the Industrial Aid Society, secretary; Joseph J. Tillinghast, treasurer.

JOHN F. O'HARA PASSES AWAY

John F. O'Hara, 48, of 68 Edgmont st., Brookline, a millionaire head of the O'Hara Bros. fish company, died at the State Sanatorium in Lakeview today.

O'Hara, who entered the fish business when he was 17 years old, is survived by his mother, who is in Ireland; two brothers, a sister, one daughter, Mary E., and two sons, Patrick J. and William O'Hara.

Flags at the Fish Pier, where his company has offices, were placed at half staff, as were flags in Gloucester, where the company owns a salt fish plant.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Courts Hamper Vice Drive, Says Cermak

Chicago, Sept. 26 (AP)—Mayor Anton J. Cermak today accused the courts of hampering his efforts to clean out the gambling dens of Chicago.

The dismissal of cases against 125 men on technical grounds yesterday in two-time prompted the accusation, which he followed up quickly with a statement that he would keep right on raiding gambling establishments, "warrant or no warrant."

CHOKING GIRL, 2, IS SAVED

Little Annie Pistoni, two of Cross st., East Boston, was saved from strangulation last night by Dr. Arthur G. Holland of the East Boston Relief Hospital, who succeeded in extracting from her larynx a toy lantern that had become lodged there.

The child, her face discolored, was rushed to the hospital by her mother, who told the doctor in broken English that there was something the matter with the child's head.

Dr. Holland, in examining the child's throat, found something was lodged there. After several attempts, he extracted the toy lantern.

1 DEAD, 1 DYING IN GARAGE FIRE

Fall River, Sept. 26—Frank Konikowski, 23, was killed and his brother, John, 26, is dying of burns received when fire swept the garage in the rear of their home at 1359 Plymouth ave., here, early today.

Frank was burned to death when his clothing caught fire as the flames ignited the gasoline tank, causing two explosions. His brother, rushing to his aid, received first and second degree burns of the head and body.

He was able, to run from the flaming building and extinguish his burning clothes by rolling on the ground. He was rushed to St. Ann's Hospital. He is not expected to recover.

The brothers were the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Konikowski, with whom they made their home. The father is a prominent contractor and both sons were associated in business with him.

Gaston Residence Is Sold to School

The palatial residence of the late Col. William A. Gaston, one time candidate for governor, and prominent Boston financier, located at 97 Bay State rd., has been sold to the Leland Powers school, it was announced today.

Valued at $31,922 in the inventory of the $7,000,000 estate left by Col. Gaston, the six-story building will be used as a girls' dormitory. The amount of money involved was not revealed.

Man Arrested on Bad Check Charge

William E. Dolland, 49, of Boylston st., was arrested after he is alleged to have attempted to pass a forged check in a State st. banking house. He was arrested yesterday afternoon at State and Devonshire sts. by Traffic Officer Frank Gorman of the Milk st. traffic station.

Mgr. Spellman, Papal Aid, Starts Vacation

Vatican City, Sept. 26 (AP)—Cardinal Pacelli, the Papal Secretary of State, left today for a month's vacation in Switzerland accompanied by Monsignor Francis J. Spellman, of Whitman, Mass. It is unlikely that Premier Mussolini will visit Pope Pius before the Cardinal returns.

NEARLY MOBBED ON ERRAND OF MERCY

Throng, Crying for Food, Disappointed to Find Medical Supplies in Plane

Nanking, Sept. 26 (AP)—A crying, starving throng surrounded the plane of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh when it landed on flood waters near Hinghwa, Northern Kiangsu Province, today and for a time it was feared the craft would be damaged and its occupants harmed.

Coming in sampans, tubs and anything floatable, the throng surged around the plane, snatching at packages it contained. The hungry natives wanted food and were disappointed when they learned the plane brought only medical supplies.

PLANE IN DANGER.

Col. Lindbergh, Dr. Heng Liu, director of the national flood relief commission's department of hygiene and sanitation, and Dr. J. N. Grant, American faculty member of the Peiping Union Medical College, who made the flight, took off almost immediately to return to Nanking, deciding they could do nothing except to save the plane from possible damage.

Hinghwa has been flooded for nearly a month.

Speaking of the incident, Col. Lindbergh said:

"It was the most heartrending experience of my career."

WELTER OF MISERY

He said it was not the possible danger that worried him and his companions as much as it was the realization of their helplessness when confronted by such a welter of human misery.

Hinghwa is 70 miles northeast of Nanking and almost in the center of the lowest point of the basin between the Grand Canal and Yellow Sea. Normally it is a thriving market town. It is the county seat of Hinghwa County, which prior to the flood had a population of 600,000.

Mrs. Lindberg missed the trying experience. She remained at Nanking when the party took off earlier in the day deciding Dr. Liu and Dr. Grant would need the space she might occupy.

LONDON PRESS LAUDS HEARST

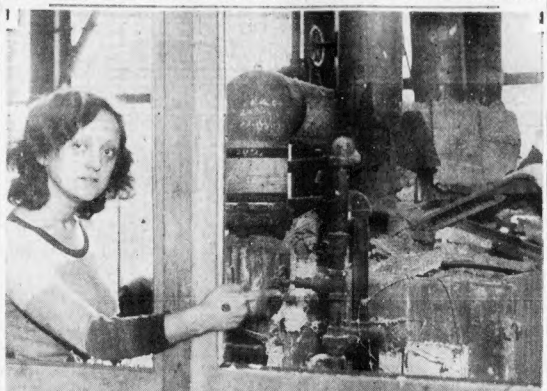
London Sept. 26 (US)—The London Evening Standard on its editorial page in "The Londoner's Diary," by Rubrique, says of Mr. William Randolph Hearst's recent radio speech:

"So many English people have been told that Mr. Hearst is anti-English that they have come to believe it.

"Believe me there is nothing anti-English about Mr. Hearst. His shrewd observations prove this, even if some of them are not flattering to our national pride."

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

BOILER BLAST SOUNDED LIKE PLANE CRASH



Miss Helen Smith of Humboldt pl., South Boston, who was one of the girl workers who fainted when a boiler exploded at 1000 Washington st. Miss Smith, who was working 50 feet from the boiler, was revived and is shown pointing to the wrecked boiler. Workers believed a plane had crashed, causing the explosion.

CONGRESS SURE TO ACT ON BEER

Washington, Sept. 26 (INS)—The impetus given the prohibition fight by the Legion's demand for a showdown has made inevitable a real counting of the wet and dry noses in the coming session of the 72d Congress. This was the conclusion of congressional leaders today.

Despite the agitation of the prohibition issue for ten years, there never has been an out-and-out, clear-cut division in either house on the question.

The drys have always been so powerful that opponents of prohibition have been unable to force a real test. Scores of members have evaded the issue and stayed on the fence.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, which only last session started keeping close tabs on the prohibition views of members, claims there were 162 members of the House who in the 1930 campaign committed themselves for modification, repeal, or for both. Some 23 senators are likewise listed.

Dry Head Wants to Jail All Who Drink

Portland, Ore., Sept. 26 (AP)—Ira C. Landrith, president of the National Temperance Council, asserts that if the "wets don't quit drinking we will make a law that will send drinkers to prison."

Speaking before the Allied Campaigners in the interest of prohibition, Landrith said that while his organization is not fighting the American Legion, "I don't mind saying they did better fighting in France than they did in Detroit."

Coolidge's "Double" Gets Freedom as Rum Violator

"You look like Calvin Coolidge's double," said U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney today when Marcus W. Nolan of Central st., Winchendon, was arraigned on liquor law violations.

Mr. Coolidge's "double" said nothing, except to plead not guilty.

"I find you not guilty and dismiss the case for lack of evidence," said Commissioner Jenney.

However, Nolan's friend, William F. Slavin, also of Winchendon, was found guilty of illegally selling liquor, and was held for the grand jury.

LEGION BAND LOVES HOME

"Paris, France, is a great place, but—are we glad to get home!"

These words, uttered by the 34 members of the Cohasset Legion Band, were somewhat lost in the general confusion of greetings extended by wives and sweethearts of the group of Legionnaires who returned today from a four weeks' trip to the French capital.

The trip was made to create a memorial to the late George H. Mesby, former Cohasset soldier, who lost his life during the World War.

D. R. Merchant, leader of the band, and Edward J. Foley, president of the organization, said the trip was a great success.

SPOTS HALT SIX IN STOLEN CAR

Six boys headed for New Hampshire in a stolen sedan were halted early today by five shots from a policeman's pistol after a five-mile chase through Somerville and Arlington.

Officer O'Brien of Arlington picked up the pursuit after the boys, between 11 and 14, sped through Somerville. He caught them at Mill and Summer sts. on the road to Concord.

Towns Menaced by Fire in California

Ukiah, Cal., Sept. 26 (AP)—Federal, state and county officials combined efforts here today to rid Mendocino County of the most drastic fire situation in its history.

With thousands of acres already blackened, the flames threw a pall of smoke for miles, destroyed homes and outbuildings, burned bridges and threatened several small towns. Red Cross officials were caring for those made homeless, 12 families in all.

Doukobors Start "Reign of Terror"

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 26 (AP)—British Columbia's government today considered assertions of a group of legislative members that open communism and a "reign of terror" exists among the 12,000 Doukobors in the south.

Five members of the Provincial Legislature conferred yesterday with government officials, demanding that police protection be given farmers who live near Doukobor settlements.

DOCTORS UPSET KANE'S STORY

Hampton, Va., Sept. 26—The state is ready to produce five physicians, three of whom attended Mrs. Jenny Kane within the past month, to testify that she was not suffering from chronic heart trouble, to offset the defense of Prof. Kane, her husband, that she died from a heart attack and was not drowned.

Prof. Kane, holder of four university degrees, is charged by the State with drowning his wife off Back River Light, in Chesapeake Bay, two weeks ago.

Elizabeth "Betty" Dahl, the mystery woman, who sometimes was a stewardess on an ocean liner, "is being deliberately spirited away by the defense to prevent any leak, it was charged today.

The defense has promised to produce her should the letters she is alleged to have written

WAVE OF CRIME LAID AT DOOR OF DRY LAW

Report Blames Measure for "Graft, Corruption, Murder and Hypocrisy"

By MARY COYLE CHASE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Denver, Sept. 26—Admission that the prohibition law is largely responsible for present lawlessness and recognition of widespread difference of opinion regarding prohibition were outstanding in a report submitted today to the fiftieth triennial general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The report submitted by the committee of 21 declared "that enforcement of the prohibition law has been steadily resisted and has been accompanied by graft, corruption, lawlessness, murder and political cowardice and hypocrisy."

But to those who sincerely believe in modification, the report presents the responsibility of providing "some adequate substitute which will enlist the confidence and support of the people."

Candor compels recognition of the lawlessness arising from the dry law, the committee stated, but it warned that only a distorted view would place too large a blame against prohibition.

The committee also urged the United States to enter the world court and that definite steps be taken to remedy depression as well as to prevent it in the future.

A new battle over marriage and divorce is expected

VINCENT CLUB GIRL A BRIDE

VETS HURL LIE AT SPREE TALE

Denouncing reports of excessive drinking at the American Legion convention in Detroit, 700 Massachusetts Legionnaires arrived at the North Station today in three special trains from Montreal.

Their sobriety belied the reports and train crews said there had been no disorder en route, only joviality. Everybody was having a good time, conductors said.

Customs officials at the border took only a few bottles which were displayed so plainly that they could not overlook them, according to members of the Legion party. A few bottles were in evidence when Boston was reached, but there was very little open drinking.

Drinkers did not make themselves obnoxious in Detroit at any time, the Legion men said. Many of the returning veterans had their wives with them. Others were met by their wives and children at the trains.

Safe Robbers Are Foiled in Laundry

Safe burglars early today failed in an attempt to rob the safe of the Quality Laundry, Beacon st., Somerville, of a small amount of cash. Workers who entered the laundry found the safe blown open and papers and accounts strewn over the floor. An inner compartment where the money was kept resisted the efforts of the crackmen.

80 Galicia Villages Deserted in Storms

Warsaw, Sept. 26 (AP)—Snows and rains in western Galicia have forced the population to evacuate 80 villages and flee to the Carpathian highlands. Bridges have been destroyed and floods are threatening dykes that protect huge areas.

GANG SLANDER PLOT BARED

Chicago, Sept. 26 (AP)—The Tribune said today that Federal officials have exploded a plot designed by Terry Druggan and other hoodlums associated with him in prohibition and income tax law violations to attempt to damage the character of George E. W. Johnson, U. S. district attorney, and to obstruct government prosecution of Druggan, Al Capone, Frank Lake and Jack Guzick.

The plot had advanced to the point, the Tribune said, where Druggan intended to testify from the witness stand in federal court during his income tax evasion trial that he had paid $75,000 to procure immunity from punishment and that his money reached Johnson's office.

The outstanding facts of the plot, the Tribune said, were that Druggan and Lake were confronted with imprisonment in a federal penitentiary and, having fought off punishment this long, were determined to stay free at any cost.

Falling Prices Hit Value of Exports

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Although better business in some lines during the first half of 1931 is noted by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, today in an analysis of export trade the total value of outgoing shipments dropped 36.6 per cent.

Falling prices were blamed, as the quantity of exports is estimated to have decreased only 22 per cent.

TWO JUNIOR LEAGUERS ARE BRIDES TODAY

BEACON HILL

—by—
Betty Adie

ARCHITECTURALLY SPEAKING, MISS ELIZABETH CRAM, who moves in the Best circles, in fact, only in the center of them, and who will parade in this small enclosure for the benefit of her sister debutantes this season, looks like a composite picture of Mamma and Daddy, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Adams Cram. Father Cram is one of THE architects, but we wonder what he thinks about when he saunters by one of his first endeavors at 331 Beacon st.; maybe he tosses it off lightly as one of his early indiscretions.

NANCY HALLOWELL

* * *

The Crams are Beacon Hillites, having lived on Chestnut st. and now residing on Pinckney. Sister Mary came out a few years ago and has already severed the ties that did not bind. Miss Elizabeth (Beth to her intimates) is temperamental, attended the May School and has lived much in Europe. Before leaving I must tell you that Mrs. Cram has always been interested in the Women's Municipal League but has now gone in for Grecian robes and Russian interests. This for the benefit for the stag line.

* * *

Mrs. Andrew Adie to Go on Cruise

MRS. J. MOTT HALLOWELL AND DAUGHTER, NANCY, have returned from Europe and are at their place on the Cape, Wianno, we think, until late in the fall.

* * *

THERE HAS BEEN ENROLLED ANOTHER ADVENTURER for that South Sea Island voyage, Mrs. Andrew Adie of Chestnut Hill. This entitles her to the Order of the Golden Fleece, the Bridge and the Bar.

* * *

EITHER STRINGS ARE sighing that the two Moore boys are living on a South Sea Island —John and George if you want to send them a postcard, sons of that multirich Mr. Thomas Moore of Manchester-by-the-Sea. Singing peaches, not singing beaches for them, yes?

* * *

THE RUMOR PERSISTS that Mother Crocker only brings daughter Nancy Crocker Lampee back home so that she will not get entirely uncivilized with husband Lawton on Two-Rhea ranch. Lawt did not come with her—Nancy must like her diamonds in the rough. The pussies are watching this romance with hungry eyes. Meantime, Filchburg friends are glad to welcome their popular daughter for a visit.

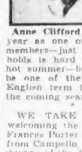
HELEN SCOTT IS FLASHING a piece of ice as large as—well as large as possible, on the third finger on her left hand and does she like it? She is the daughter of one of society's beautiful matrons, Mrs. Hugh D. Scott of Homewood, Wellesley, chairman of the Junior Supper Dances and other bonnes, and we hear that the wedding will take place early in October. Mother and daughter left today for a trousseau shopping trip in New York. Another good wedding order gone Gotham.

SAW ANNE CLIFFORD ON Tremont st. yesterday—very swish in dark blue ensemble and one of the girls who can wear the Empress' ear-lopper and get away with it. She is a very pretty girl, looks like a girl, soft wavy brown hair and blue eyes that do NOT resemble glassies pushed into putty. The Junior League will know her again. This year as one of their important members—just what office she holds is hard to recall after a hot summer—but she is sure to be one of the Heavy Pellets—English term for Big Shots—of the coming season.



Anne Clifford

WE TAKE PLEASURE IN welcoming the Misses Mary and Frances Porter back in our midst from Campello. Miss Mary is the duenna of the debutantes and she and the Patents' League go into a huddle every so often to decide what the little debbie shall or shall not do. This year we heard the parties are going to begin earlier, especially the dinners so that the boys won't take the edge off a good filled bugbon with a hot dog before they arrive.

AMONG SEASON'S DEBS

MISS DEROSETT MISS CHAPIN

MISS ARSENE DEROSETT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Nash DeRossett of Brookline, snapped with Miss Martha Chapin, daughter of the John R. Chapins, also of Brookline, at one of the early debutante affairs. Miss Chapin will be presented at a tea which her grandmother will give in her honor on October 30 at the Chilton Club. The dance which her parents were to give at The Country Club has been cancelled.

Sally Wambolt Bride Today

Veering from the conventional white, Miss Sally Wambolt, whose name we were quite surprised to find is really Sarah, is being married this afternoon in a gown of blush pink satin, fashioned on simple lines, with a veil of old-family lace and tulle. She is carrying orchids and gardenias also suggesting tainted pink. Oh, we forgot to mention that important person, the bridegroom, Mr. Philip Cushman Barney, of Farmington, Ct.

Mrs. Mark Hopkins, who until a month or so ago, was Miss Dorothy Rogers, in matron of honor, wearing pale orange ribbed taffeta set off by a brown velvet hat. She is carrying mixed flowers of bright coloring. The two bridesmaids, Miss Constance Creighton and Miss Louise Soder, are wearing pale beige ribbed taffeta and bronze hats similar to Mrs. Hopkins', as are their mixed flower bouquets.

Reception at Hotel

The wedding takes place in the Leslie Lindsay Memorial Chapel of Emmanuel Church, at 4:30, the Rev. Benjamin M. Washburn, rector, and the Rev. Ernest Meredith, officiating. Miss Wambolt, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henry Wambolt of Mt. Auburn st., Cambridge, is being given in marriage by her father. A reception follows immediately at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, so that the guests can just walk around the corner. Perhaps even the bride and bridegroom will!

Mr. Barney is being attended by his brother, Mr. Austen Dunham Barney, and included in the usher group are the Messrs. Danford Newton Barney, another brother, of Scarsdale, N. Y., Arthur L. Shipman, Horace B. Learned, John C. Cooley, William P. Conklin, Jr., Henry McClane, all of Hartford, Conn., John A. Howard, Jr., of Wheeling, West Virginia, and Clinton M. Bidwell, of Pasadena, California.

Star of Shows

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Danford Newton Barney, who were hosts last night to the bridal party at dinner, at the Ritz. Mr. Barney was graduated from Yale with the class of '29.

Miss Wambolt made her debut at a tea during the 1928-29 season, becoming a member of both the Junior League and Vincent Club. One cannot think of the last two or three Vincent Shows without picturing vivacious, laughing Sally "doing her stuff," or singing one of the several songs of her own composition.

When she dashes away after the reception this afternoon as Mrs. Barney, on a wedding trip that is going to last till they are "at home after December 1" in Framingham, Miss Sally will wear a brown tweed suit, trimmed with caracul. The best of luck and happiness, Sally!

Sibley-Robbins Wedding

Another Junior League and Vincent Club member became a bride today when Miss Anne Robbins walked down the aisle of King's Chapel at a high noon ceremony, to meet Mr. Hiram Watson Sibley at the altar. She wore white satin and lace veil and carried white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her two sisters, Mrs. Minton M. Warren (Sarah Robbins) and Miss Celina Robbins, attended her as matron and maid of honor, wearing simple gowns of salmon pink velvet and brown velvet hats.

The eight bridesmaids, dressed alike in eggshell velvet on the same lines, also hatted in brown velvet, carried mixed flowers. The group included Miss Elfreda Carter, Miss Ethel Grew and Miss Rachel Warner, all of Boston; Miss Penelope Perry of Dover, Miss Anna Dickson and Miss Louise Paine of Weston and Miss Anne Sibley, sister of the bridegroom, of Rochester.

In Usher Group

Mr. Sibley, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Sibley of Rochester, N. Y., chose Mr. Samuel Lane of Milton to be his best man. The ushers included the Messrs. Alexander Keyes of Forest Hills, L. I., Lloyd Sartus of Merristown, N. J., Charles Jackson of Dover, Henry and Chandler Robbins, 2d, brothers of the bride, and James L. Madden of Boston, Herman Gade of New York, Frank Moss of Philadelphia, Thomas Spencer and Harper Woodward, both of Rochester, and the Rev. C. Leslie Glenn of Cambridge, who married Mr. Sibley's sister Georgia, about two years ago.

The ceremony, at which the Rev. Dr. Brown, rector of King's Chapel, and the Rev. Endicott Peabody of Groton school, where Mr. Sibley prepared for college, officiated, was being followed by a reception at the Country Club.

Harvard Grad

Mr. Sibley was graduated from Harvard with the class of '31 and is a member of Spankers, Phenix, S-K and Hasty Pudding Clubs. He will take his bride to live in Rochester, where they will be at home after November 1.

Miss Robbins attended the Winsor school, making her debut in the 1928-29 season, at a dance where she shared the honors with one of her bridesmaids, Miss Penelope Perry, daughter of the Arthur Perrys.

Hoover Against War Council's Revival

Washington, Sept. 26—The federal government has no intention of reviving the old war-time council of national defence as proposed during the American Legion convention.

Man About Town

BOX OFFICE STUFF

Law of Rhapsody in Black"! Leslie, like his contemporary, George White, likes to get into a box office and sell tickets to the customers clamoring for admission to his shows.

Twenn at the Majestic the other night Lew was handling the window sale when a particularly finicky lady came up to the window. She wanted two 50c seats in the second balcony. They must be in front and there must be no spotlights in front of her to obstruct her view of the stage. Leslie reached up to the rack, pulled down two tickets and handed them to her.

"Madame," he said solemnly, "these are two of the seats that the proprietor, Mr. Leslie, holds out for his personal friends at each performance. But since, you are so particular, I'll give them to you."

The lady paid her dollar, took the tickets and walked into the theater quite contented.

ADVANCE DOPE

"Gee," said a racket acquaintance, "I feel tough. I gotta rush over to New York in a guy's funeral. Tsk! Tsk! Tsk!"

"That so?" said us, full of sympathy. "Who's dead?"

"That's the tough part about it. He doesn't know it yet."

THE MAIL BAG

The mail has been unusually heavy this week and we've sort of run behind on answering the queries and complaints that have come filtering in to our desk. The easiest way to get rid of them is to sort of jumble them together and answer them in one fell swoop.

First of all, let's consider the outburst of some boze who calls himself "I'm Wondering." Nothing that I do seems to please this guy. All my stuff, he says, is copied from Hellinger and Winchell.

"My two kids stuff," he says, "Ah Winchell." Listen, fellah, my two kids are all dandy and don't you make any mistake about it. "Continual referring to how big you go over with the women." Who? Me? Mister, you're kidnaping! I'm one of those guys who was born into this world to be everyone's big brother. Ten minutes after I meet a girl she starts to tell me about her sweetheart and ask my advice about her romance.

Then, after pasting me and my column for a farm-brace-and, this guy winds up by saying, "Good luck, old boy, we still read it, anyhow—that's something." Something? That's everything.

Someone boasting the name of "Iris" in Chelsea sends us a clipping from page two of "The Chelsea Citizen" which carries a Hebrew phrase wishing the paper a lawsen friends in Chelsea "A Happy New Year." Pretty sentiment. I calls it, Bob Deering, of Brookline, an alumnus of the Globe and Record, takes me to task for referring to it as the "Yale-Harvard" game.

"You're in Boston, now, old man," he admonishes, "and up here it is the 'Harvard-Yale game.'"

Please pardon us while we go stand in the corner for punishment.

Royalty in New Class at Harvard

Royalty and literature are both well represented in the 296th freshman class at Harvard College, the first to be housed in the yard. Other classes register today.

Among the entrants are Prince Cyril Leo Toumanoff, John Miguel de Bragance, Makonnen Kassa Desta, whose father is a former member of the Abyssinian government, Edward Tainali Canby, son of Henry Seidel Canby, Edward Robbins, Arthur Stanwood Pier, George Lee Hoskins, Frank Leslie Spreckels, and Alexander Stillman, son of James A. Stillman.

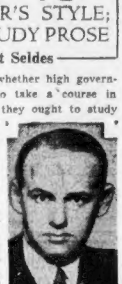
MR. HOOVER'S STYLE; SHOULD STUDY PROSE

—By Gilbert Seldes—

I DO NOT KNOW whether high government officials ought to take a course in poetry, but I am sure they ought to study prose style. A few weeks ago Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, had the bitter job of facing a fairly hostile House of Commons with his proposals; he had to tell them that an English navy earning $1.50 a day would henceforth pay income tax and at the same time pay more for tobacco and beer. Out of the mass of disagreeable figures, he suddenly rose to poetry, not his own, but Swinburne's, and—it seemed a little exaggerated at the time—cried out, "Come the world against her, England yet shall stand."



Gilbert Seldes

Our own Cabinet ministers and Congressmen aren't used to this sort of thing. President Roosevelt praised Edward Arlington Robinson, but the poetic tastes of Taft, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover are not widely known. Wilson, we remember, liked limericks. In my time in Washington I never heard Senator Overman quote the Psalm of Life or Excelsior, although I am sure he liked them both; and I generally was assumed that Henry Cabot Lodge (who had written a book to prove that Achilles was not a hero) was the only literary man in the upper chamber.

Prose Is Not Enough

Perhaps it is as well. Yet moments arise in the lives of nations when something more exalted than an efficiency expert's report is wanted. No one questions the courage of President Hoover in going before the American Legion and telling the soldiers that he would not approve of additional payments on the bonus; he risked defeat by Congress in its next session, risked re-election. But I cannot get enthusiastic over the advertised circumstance that the bonus was not directly mentioned. An up-State New York paper says the speech was refreshing—was "real soldier talk." Real soldier talk, as I recall it, was particularly frank about the payroll.

The President was at his best when he suggested that it was unfitted for him to plead with any group of citizens for any course of action, although the horrid suspicion exists that he was? in effect, pleading. But what can be made of his reference to the Great War, the beginning of the legion, the beginning of the very disasters which the legion now is asked to suffer and redress? The thought is good enough, but it is set forth in old phrases, as if remembered from another time, as if the whole thing were not a horrible fact, but a literary exercise.

* * *

Emotion Wanting

"My mind goes back to the days of the war," said the President, "when you and I served in our appointed tasks. At the end of those years of heart sickness over the misery of it all, when the peace came, you and I knew that the wounds of the world were unhealed and that there would be further emergencies still before our country and the world when self-denial and courageous service must be given."

Heaven knows it's true; but the truth has to be lifted to the plane of emotion before it can be effective; it has to be said as if it had never been said before, and as if no one but the speaker could ever say just that way—because he felt it. "For God's sake, let us sit upon the ground, and tell sad stories of the death of kings."

* * *

Forty Times Three

Here is a press notice about an important critic of America:

"Out of a colonial population equivalent to twice that of Los Angeles came a George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman, Robert Morris, James Madison, Alexander Hamilton, C. C. Pickney, John Dickinson, William Paterson, Rufus King, James Wilson and others. In 1931, with forty times the population and many thousand times the wealth of 1787, could we have forty groups of similar capacity sitting simultaneously?"

James Truslow Adams asks the question in "The Epic of America," which Little, Brown will publish on September 30.

It is an interesting question. Point one: It omits Jefferson and Burr, among others. Point two: Only three of those mentioned are generally considered world figures. Point three: It wouldn't matter if we did have forty such groups. Until they acquired the sanctity of death, we shouldn't feel their greatness or know how to measure it.

Something to You

I'm not any sheik and my wages each week
Are not such a lot
I admit.
I've got a kind heart, but I'm not very smart
I never could wise-crack a bit.
I'm kind of a nobody, honey.
A cipher, a goose egg, it's true.
But what do I care if I'm Nothing at All
If only I'm something to you.
CHORUS
Kid, say I am Something to You
A wee little Something will do,
Just tell me you find me
A pretty good scout.
Just say you don't mind me
When I am about,
Just tell me you see me when I am in view.
I guess I'm no hero
Perhaps I'm a zero
But what do I care if it's true
That I am a rum thing
A glum and a dumb thing
If only I'm Something to You?

—Burton Braley.

"Do you think it's really true—that most of the trouble in this world is caused by women?"

Those English

—By Gobind Behari Lal—

UNLESS SOMEONE has the courage to state a generality, there won't be any instructive argument. G. J. Renier, a Dutch journalist, who has lived in London for 20 years and has acquired such a liking for suet-pudding and ale that residence elsewhere is disappointing, offers one in "The English: Are They Human?" (Cape & Smith).

He stakes out a wide claim. What English? There are 30 millions of them! He rules out those who are "different," and arraigns, with wit and some indulgence, the "unintellectual stubborn, silent" type—the kind we refer to as "awfully English."

He marks them off as a race distinct from the rest of mankind, sprung up, like Britannia, at heaven's command.

* * *

They were not always thus, he believes. When an embassy of diplomats from London visited the Spanish court in 1650 or so they astonished the dons by their antics, for they whistled, cracked their fingers and capered as merrily as harlequins. Renier blames it all on the forcing of British life into a ritual. The villain of the piece was Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, who set the pattern by drilling upper-class youth to act like officers and on no account to act without repression. As a consequence, the English are sex-starved, inarticulate, devoted to four-footed animals, because they also are inarticulate. They regard eccentricity as barbaric. They follow the prescribed rules in food, hair-cuts and raiment. In short, they are rigidly formulated and done for.

* * *

Most Englishmen will admit it is perfectly true. But more curious is the truth that it isn't, though even they will hate to admit it isn't.

London is the paradise of eccentrics. Look at its toleration of all headgear—Gainsboroughs, pokes, white satin toppers and shabby caps. Great editors wear shawls and stove-pipe lids. Straws are common if faut even in snowstorms. The prime minister in going to Parliament wears a frock coat, bowler hat and puffs a dreadful pipe. In America these would be crimes of the first dimension. To us, frumpiness is anathema.

But in spite of more shaking blows than America ever received, in spite of topsy-turvydom, moratoria, the plunging of consols, England still remains England. The more she changes, the more she is the same thing. Because she loves inward form and keeps it inviolate.

City Bound

Oh, when I die
I hope that I
Will not be buried quietly
Beside some meadow
Sweet with grass—
Or near the lonely, changeless sea.

I hope that still
My soul may thrill
To restless, changing city ways—
My quiet heart
Will find its place
In a bright chain of busy days!

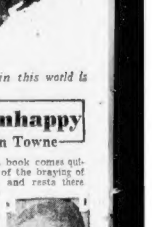
—Margaret E. Sangster.

Why We're Unhappy

—By Charles Hanson Towne—

EVERY LITTLE WHILE a book comes quietly to one's desk, without any of the braying of trumpets or clash of cymbals, and rests there tranquilly, hoping, I suppose, to be picked up and dipped into.

I have never heard of Gerald Chittenden, and I was a bit confused by the title of his small volume, "Reflections of a Resident Ex-Patriate," which Longmans, Green have issued. The book did not look particularly impressive, but I slipped my desultory fingers through its pages, and I found many arresting phrases therein. Indeed, everything that caught my eye seemed a little more than worthwhile, and so I sat down and began at the beginning and read through to the end.



C. H. Towne

Mr. Chittenden's is a plea for a simpler form of living in an age of rapid movement and inordinate hustle. He calls himself a "non-competitive man." In other words, he does not find it necessary always to get into the thick of the fight, but he admits to a deep interest in this serious business of living. He is an American to the bone. But he finds that Americans are going the wrong way in their quest for success.

* * *

"Happiness," he says, "is a curious mixture of pleasure and pain. It degenerates into a sodden and ultimately unsatisfactory contentment when the element of pain is absent; it is exalted into tragedy when pain is predominant; it sinks into mere boredom when the scale tips too long in either direction . . . The conquest of difficulties, the consciousness of adequacy that can come to a man only when he has behaved well under trying circumstances, are the hard stuff of happiness."

In other words, most people are looking for happy lives, when we should realize that we were put here to lead strong lives.

Mr. Chittenden is occupied in a boys' school in New Hampshire, and he finds the kind of privacy and peace in his small town which an desires more than wealth. He has had the courage to break away from the strain of the so-called material success; yet his days are full of interest and charm. His adventures in contentment might be shared by us all if we had the wit to do as he has done. I put his volume down, wishing that more men had his courage and intelligence.

* * *

One feels genuinely sorry for the people who never saw Pavlova dance. For, as Walford Hyden, her former musical director, says in his volume on her, published by Little, Brown & Co., "To have seen Pavlova dance is to have had a spiritual experience, to have been in the presence of a Mystery—so great was her emotional power. When the dancer dies, the dance is finished."

In the other arts, nowadays, it is not so. Yet if motion pictures had been taken of Pavlova we would have had a ghostly semblance of her forever.

Like all great artists, we learn that Pavlova had a capacity for hard work. She would often insist upon an hour's rehearsal of a movement which required about ten seconds at the performance. She seemed to be blest of the gods in that she escaped the calamities which so often overtake the peripatetic artist. Once a train in which she was traveling passed over a bridge; and immediately thereafter the bridge broke and fell into a chasm. Yet it was through an accident in France that she caught the severe cold which resulted in her death.

Mr. Hyden's book is interesting, but at times it seems overwritten. He is carried away by the genius of his subject, and indulges in flowery phrases; but, this is but natural. Pavlova was great; and one can speak great of her, much less write of her, in ordinary terms.

PHYSICIAN TO DIVORCE TWICE-WED WIFE TO MARRY HEIRESS

DR. W. B. JONES HAS HIS NO. 3 PICKED OUT

Keeps Her Identity Secret as Suffolk Suit Is Filed; He Expects No Contest

Love will always find a way. Or maybe the third time won't fail.

At any rate, Dr. Waldo B. Jones, former medical examiner for the State Boxing Commission and prominent Massachusetts ave. physician, today filed a divorce suit against his twice-wedded wife, Mrs. Hazel P. Jones.

And the doctor says there is a wealthy college heiress ready and willing to become the third Mrs. Jones.

Dr. Jones' expeditions into the Land of Matrimony began in 1913, when he married the present Mrs. Jones for the first time. This was just before the World War began, and the marriage lasted until May 25, 1922, when a divorce decree granted in Suffolk probate court became absolute.

REWED ONLY TO PART

A year of single "bliss" and Dr. Jones remarried his former wife, the wedding taking place in New York City on July 13, 1925.

After three or four years Dr. Jones and his wife separated again.

Mrs. Jones, a former Boston business woman, who at one time was head of the employment bureau for a large corporation, is at present in New York, and the doctor has not seen or heard from her in recent years.

The mysterious "heiress" hove into view, and Dr. Jones says it was time to apply for a divorce on the grounds of desertion and cruel and abusive treatment.

WON'T NAME CHOICE

Today Atty. Ralph Bernard filed the divorce suit in Suffolk Probate Court. It is expected that the suit will be uncontested.

"When, and if, you are given your decree this time," Dr. Jones was asked, "will you 'name the woman'?"

"I might. I might," was the reply. "I'd do it now, but would rather have this divorce business all cleared up first."

So, while the prospective third Mrs. Jones is biding her time, the doctor is anxiously awaiting the decision of the court. No date has been set for the hearing.

MARITAL WOES PILE UP FOR AGED 'ELOPER'

The marital troubles of Louis Stern, 60-year-old West End realtor who "eloped" to Rhode Island last month and was "married" to Mrs. Mary Millman, 47-year-old Dorchester widow, continued to pile up today.

Atty. S. H. Kugell, counsel for Stern's second wife, Mary, today filed legal objections in Suffolk probate court to Stern's divorce becoming absolute on October 1.

Stern's divorced his second wife last April on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment and made a settlement of $2500.

WIFE NO. 2 OBJECTS

In the papers filed counsel for Mrs. Stern No. 2 objects to the decree nisi becoming absolute on the ground that Stern made false statements in Providence when he obtained a marriage license to marry a third time.

The alleged falsification refers to previous marriages and residence and because he went outside the State of Massachusetts to evade the law. Under Massachusetts law a person obtaining a decree nisi is not permitted to remarry until the divorce becomes absolute six months later.

Stern and the widow Millman were married in Providence, R. I., Aug. 12 last by Rabbi H. D. Baeirach. They gave Central Falls addresses at Central Falls city hall when they obtained a marriage license.

SUED FOR BALM

Previously that day they applied for a marriage license at Providence, but as they gave out of state addresses they were informed they would be compelled to wait six days before they could be married. Rhode Island municipal and police officials made an investigation and deemed the addresses given by the couple were fictitious.

A few days after being "married" to Mrs. Millman, Mr. Stern was sued for $50,000 for breach of promise by Matilda Cohen, 24, of Wayland st.

MacDonald's Destiny in Balance, Says Hore-Belisha, Noted Liberal

Lloyd George and Churchill Loom in Background as Next Men for Post

By LESLIE HORE-BELISHA,
Member of Parliament
Prominent Journalist and Parliamentarian, Author of the Famous Liberal Party Manifesto Pledging Support of the Majority of Liberals in Parliament to Prime Minister MacDonald.

Universal Service Special Cable
(Copyright, 1931, Universal Service, Inc.)

London, Sept. 26—J. Ramsay MacDonald's mandate as prime minister of the national government of Great Britain is exhausted.

He is still on that high pinnacle of prestige to which he was raised overnight when he undertook to form a composite administration to balance the budget.

But he does not seem certain of his foothold. He hesitates to make that appeal which he alone can make. Already he has missed the psychological moment to announce either a general election or some definite plan which can be put through Parliament.

TARIFF REVOLUTION

The definite plan which MacDonald is expected to announce is one of tariffs.

He is the one man who could effect this economic revolution in England. He could carry it into law with the assistance of the best elements of the Liberal and Socialist parties.

Never will such an opportunity come again. If he declines the task, fiscal reform will become once more what it always has been in England, merely the principle item in the program of the Conservatives.

Why is there need for haste? For two reasons.

The adverse balance of trade must be redressed if starvation is to be avoided in an island dependent for three-quarters of its food supply from abroad.

Because there has begun to loom again in the background a politico a powerful personality capable of attracting to himself all forces which are growing in opposition to the national government.

David Lloyd George is convalescent. He has played no part in the recent crisis. A week ago his appearance against the national government would have been unthinkable. It would have been acclaimed as unpatriotic.

But now murmurs of dissatisfaction have begun to be heard, and they will presently swell into a loud volume of criticism.

In order to balance the budget severe cuts were made in the pay of all state servants and in benefits for the unemployed. These cuts were justified on the ground that it was better to preserve the gold standard and the purchasing power of money than to continue to pay salaries in currency not worth its face value.

But we no longer are on the gold standard and the cuts are being applied, although the arguments with which they were supported have ceased to be relevant.

RAMSAY MacDONALD

LLOYD GEORGE

But He Can Still Effect an Economic Revolution, the Writer Declares

CHANCE FOR FOES

It can be seen at once what an opportunity this gives the foes of the government.

Owing to half-hearted, unInspired leadership, the Socialists have not been able to present their case effectively. It would be different, they are saying, if Lloyd George took charge.

Accordingly, overtures are being made to Lloyd George. Appeals are being addressed to him in the left-wing press. So far, Lloyd George has not officially responded, though the temptation is obviously very great.

FAVORS FREE TRADE

But he has done a significant thing. He has allowed it to be known that he is uncompromisingly devoted to free trade.

With the bait of free trade, many liberals could be weaned from supports of the national government and the tariff.

Nicely balanced between protection and free trade is the second most powerful personality in British politics.

While we were still on the gold standard, Winston Churchill, who was not offered a post in the cabinet, became a protectionist. But when he left the gold standard, he was inclined to believe that devaluation of the pound acted in restriction of imports and encouragement of exports in other words, as a natural tariff.

He has made two stormy assaults on the budget.

UNION DISASTROUS

A union of Lloyd George and Winston Churchill would spell doom for the national government. Affairs of England would once again be under the control of two dominant war personalities, and the Socialist party would have a leadership so dynamic as to outstrip its most optimistic aspirations.

The contemplation of these possibilities should urge Premier MacDonald to act.

This is the man—a proud, aloof, dreaming man—whom destiny has chosen to determine the course of England in her critical hour. His ultimate place in history will be settled by the decision he is hourly expected to proclaim.

So will the ultimate place of England.

CLAFLIN HEADS POLICE LIST FOR CAPTAIN

Lieutenant Inspector James R. Claflin, head of the Boston police fingerprint bureau, tops the list of eligibles for captain, announced today by the State Civil Service Commission.

Forty-five took the examination on July 30, and 38 passed. With these, and five from the last list, there are 43 eligibles.

Following Claflin are Thomas F. Geary, Edward W. Fallon, Thomas S. J. Kavanagh, Stephen J. Fitzgerald, Thomas F. Carey, Daniel J. Hines, John A. Dorsey, Thomas H. Trainor and Frank H. Thompson.

NEXT 10 ON LIST.

The next 10 are Mark E. Thormer, Francis P. Haggerty, James F. Daley, Jeremiah E. Sheehan, William J. Casey, John T. O'Dea, Joseph W. F. McDonough, Charles W. Miller, Timothy J. Enneberg and Thomas M. Towle.

Then come William H. Rymes, George A. Mahoney, Henry F. Pierce, William J. Hyland, Stephen J. Gillis, Timothy F. Donovan, James F. O'Neil, Eliana W. D. LeBlanc, Sherman W. Augusta, Frank McNabb, Thomas F. Mulrey, Thomas F. Connolly, Jeremiah J. Riordan, William R. Connolly, Amasa E. Augusta, William P. Gaffney, John F. McCarthy, Andrew J. Hurley, John J. Coughlan, David V. Tintle, James R. Eagan, John F. Lyons and Michael J. Trainor.

IN "MET" POLICE.

Eligible for captain in the Metropolitan police are Henry R. Hayes of Roxbury, Donald MacLeod of Weston, Thomas E. Flowers of Medford and Leonard F. Pearl of Revere, in that order. Heading a list of 11 eligibles for lieutenant is Thomas J. Kelleher.

Eligible for lieutenant in the Brookline police department are John P. Mahoney, Thomas J. Hill, Allen Wilson, Alexander Minnis, James W. Tonra, Charles B. M. Knowles and John F. Donovan.

For inspector in the Lynn department, James W. Fee, Patrick J. Coyne, William J. Murphy, John P. Hines, Lawrence D. Nihan, John P. Wall, Joseph V. Gannon and Francis R. Lawler are on the list.

Harry J. Donahue heads the list for captain in Everett, followed by Patrick J. Cahill, Michael J. Flynn and Pietro C. Fiorentino.

Four More Banks Close in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Sept. 26 (AP)—Four state banks here failed to open their doors today, afflicted with the number of Pittsburgh institutions that have suspended business this week.

Those closed today were the Bloomfield Trust Company, the Garfield Trust, affiliated with the Bloomfield Trust, the Hamilton State Bank of Homewood and the Pennsylvania Bank & Trust Company.

Printer Held in Mutiny

London, Sept. 26 (INS)—Accused of "inciting to mutiny," William T. Williamson, a printer on the Communist newspaper Daily Worker, was arraigned today in Bow st. police court. Bail was set at $25,000.

LAVAL STARTS ON BERLIN VISIT

Paris, Sept. 26 (AP)—Pierre Laval, Premier of France, and Aristide Briand, Foreign Minister, boarded a train at the Gare du Nord station today, en route to Berlin for a series of conferences with the leaders of the German government.

There was a cheering crowd to see them off, including a delegation from Aubervilliers, the town of which the premier is mayor and which he represents as a member of the Chamber of Deputies.

"Long live Briand! Long live peace!" they shouted and the departing statesmen, smiling, waved their hands.

Woburn Flier Sets Record for Daily Plane Fights

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—A record that even a bird might envy was chalked up today by a veteran army pilot.

First Lieut. Thad V. Foster, native of Woburn, Mass., who joined the air corps during the war, was credited with averaging nearly three hours on the wing every day for a year without accident.

His record of 1019.35 flying hours during 1930 was made mostly over rough country. His efforts as airways control officer at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, in building up aviation in the southwest drew public praise from the governor of New Mexico and air corps officers.

Estimator Goes Bankrupt

Joseph F. Dyer, building estimator, of Lincoln rd., Medford, filed a voluntary petition in federal court today. His liabilities are $19,474.29 and no assets.

DOOLITTLE IN RECORD HOP

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 26—Major James H. (Jimmy) Doolittle, who left St. Louis at 9:35 a. m. today, landed at the Indianapolis Municipal Airport at 2:27 p. m., covering the 240 miles in 52 minutes. The transcontinental record-holder came here to attend the dedication of the new airport.

Doolittle broke the record between St. Louis and Indianapolis, which was 70 minutes, established by Captain Frank W. Hawks, who flew in the opposite direction.

Prisoner Ends Life in Police Station

Palmer, Sept. 26 (AP)—Clifford E. Tucker, 29, of Charlton, committed suicide in the local lockup today by hanging. He was employed as a gardener on a Wilbraham farm and was locked up yesterday to face a charge of misconduct.

WELLESLEY IS OPEN TO 1500

President Ellen Fitz Pendleton of Wellesley College today formally opened the academic year with an address of welcome to the more than 1500 students enrolled for the new term.

Among the student body were 425 freshmen, chosen from more than 1000 applicants.

President Pendleton, in her welcoming address, pointed out two significant new features of the college. For the first time, she said, the academic year was beginning with the new Administration building as the center of college activities, and Dr. Mary Lowell Coolidge, formerly of Vassar, was assuming her duties as dean.

Another speaker was Professor-emeritus Eliza Kendrick, recently returned from the 400th anniversary celebration of the University of Budapest, where she was the sole American woman delegate.

Rev. Russell Henry Stafford, pastor of Old South Church, will preach the inaugural sermon Sunday in the chapel.

P. O., Yale 'Hangout,' Moves to New Site

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 26 (AP)—The most popular informal gathering place of Yale University has moved to a new location. The doors of the old university postoffice in the basement of Fayerweather Hall where business equivalent to that of a town of 30,000 has been handled during the school year, were closed today.

Notices declared the office had moved across Elm st. to the basement of Wright dormitory.

Five-Day Week Ain't So Good

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Stock exchange is bouncing around like a fool on hossback.

All due to the English pound and Al Capone cutting wages.

Just when stocks were succumbing to another healthy reaction Andy Mellon read a few humorous extracts from the deficit and the anti-saloopers offered up prayer for Legionnaires who voted for beer.

Tex Guinan challenged Aimee McPherson to a joint debate, but Aimee doesn't go to those kind of places.

Ain't it tough enough now with a man having to look under a thousand Empress Eugenie hats to find out which one is his wife?

It shows a five-day week is no improvement. People can think up enough silly things by Friday to last the entire week.

Burglars Haul Safe Away in Cambridge

Burglars early today carried away a 400-pound safe containing more than $100 from the offices of the Lamont-Corliss Co., Albany st., Cambridge.

GANDHI WON'T LIFT BOYCOTT

Darwen, Lancashire, Eng., Sept. 26 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, surrounded by the vestiges of Great Britain's vanished textile trade with India, today turned a deaf ear to Lancashire's plea that he lift the Nationalist boycott against foreign cotton goods.

After hearing from the workers, the jobless spinners and from the mill owners how difficult Lancashire's lot has become he replied India's lot is still harder to bear and that he and the Indian Congress party would remain firm in its stand that India produce cloth sufficient for its own needs.

Gandhi today met the people who have been harmed most by the boycott.

He found, however, there was little chill in their greeting. As one man, shaking his fist in the bearded face of Rev. Charles Andrews, Gandhi's friend, expressed it:

"You tell Gandhi that a thousand Gandhi couldn't shake Lancashire off its feet."

Plainclothes men formed a special bodyguard for the Mahatma.

He posed for photographs with several babies of the community and then made a tour of the village, talking with women and children.

Special constables were stationed at 20-yard intervals along the road when Gandhi motored the 19 miles here from Springvale.

Notes and Gossip About People You Know

DOG CALLED "FRITZ II"

Mrs. Stanton R. White, the former Sally Curley, daughter of former City Treasurer John J. Curley, and niece of Mayor Curley, owns a new police dog which she has christened "Fritz II." For several years prior to her marriage last June, Mrs. White's constant companion was a friendly old police dog named "Fritz." Shortly after her return from her honeymoon the canine was killed by an automobile near the Curley summer place in Nantasket. Yesterday her husband purchased the new dog.

City Councillor James Hein of Allston is to be host to the small boys of his neighborhood at the double-header to be played by the Braves next Sunday. Tickets admitting the youngsters to Braves Field are now being distributed at the Hein residence, 1135 Commonwealth ave.

BARRYS DUE OCT. 6

Former Lieut.-Gov. Edward P. Barry and his daughter, Mary Louise, return to Boston from a brief sojourn in London and Paris on Oct. 6.

WILSON TO BE GUEST

City Councillor Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr., will be guest of honor at a celebration of the opening of the Butler st. station of the Dorchester rapid transit system in the home of Mrs. May Kerr, Branch st., Thursday. It was through Councillor Wilson's efforts that municipal authorities and officials of the Boston Elevated were prevailed upon to establish the station.

14-HOUR-A-DAY JOB

Cornelius A. Reardon, secretary to Mayor Curley, seems to be the hardest worker in the service of the city with the exception of the Mayor himself. "Connie" works an average of 14 hours a day.

BUTLER FAVORS THIRD DEGREE

East Orange, N. J., Sept. 26—Brig.-Gen. Smedley D. Butler believes "prisons and police stations should be the most horrible places on earth—so criminals would try to stay out of them."

Speaking to 1500 persons here, he also defended the third degree as a police weapon. He declared he had "never heard of an honest person getting the third degree."

His experience as police commissioner of Philadelphia taught him, he said, that "shooting it out" with criminals is the only way for police to be rid of them.

Butler asserted that police get comparatively little of the graft passed around in big cities. Officeholders of higher rank get most of it, he charged. He asserted that for $10,000 you can acquit any murderer by the very simple method of bribing up the jury.

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

Prosperity On Broadway! (Or Is It A Dream?)

Now, perhaps, all of this is very ridiculous and the chances are when I've reached the end of this column I shall have discovered that there isn't head or tail to the darn thing. I'm referring to Broadway's apparent prosperity in the face of what most of us know, deep down in our hearts, ain't so! I could run a list of names of prominent personages of the Groove that would go right down to the bottom of the page and reveal the state of their depleted finances. They're all broke—but you wouldn't know it. Ada May, the famous international star, summed up the situation the other day when I was talking it over with her. "Honestly," she said, "I heard so many stories when I was over in England about how bankrupt everybody in America is, I expected to find folks running around with their chins down to their chests and their lips curved down to their chins. That's the way you find them over there. But over here—gracious, everybody makes a lark of it. And they keep right on spending money. Where do they get it?"

Tuesday night I went to the opening of the new revue at the Paramount Grill. The place was jammed to the doors. Now I know, of course, that at least 20 per cent of those there were guests of the management or of Jay Flippen, the new master of ceremonies. But the other 80 per cent were paying guests and the waiters kept bringing bottles of ginger ale and white rock to their tables, steaks and chicken, and lavish desserts. All of which costs money and for which patrons paid. I dropped over later for a few seconds to catch Mort Downey's opening at the Central Park Casino. Again a packed place greeted my eyes. Gals in ermine and velvets and elaborate evening gowns and jewels on their fingers and on their wrists and on their bosoms. They charge stiff fees at the Casino and I saw one well known Park Avenue gent hand the waiter $150 in payment of his check. The change he received, from where I was, appeared to be something like seven or eight dollars. Multiply that by a hundred and you have some idea of what was spent in the Casino Tuesday night.

Yesterday noon I had a business engagement in Sardi's. I got there at noon and found about three people in the place. By 1 o'clock every available table was taken. By 1:30 people were being sent upstairs. I presume this happens every day at Sardi's. Prices are fairly high at this 44th st. chowry. An average luncheon runs anywhere from $2 to $4. But there they were, the gals and the lads of Broadway, eating heavy meals and paying for them in cash. Drop into Dinty Moore's any evening, into Lindy's or the Tavern. Look at the bill of fare and notice the prices. Then look around and watch people gorging themselves and make a few rapid calculations. You'll see these people there every night. Figure out how much they're spending for dinner alone and you'll begin to see what I mean when I say that Broadway seems prosperous—even though you can throw up those eat-all-you-want-for-60-cents places at me. Drop into Reuben's about 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning or into Dave's about 3 and try to get a table. Look over some of the checks and get an idea what people are spending for food alone.

Don't ask me where these folks are getting their money. Some of them, of course, are working in the shows and drawing excellent salaries. Some of them are business men. Some of them are broken. But I've been given to understand that most of the business men of New York are broke and that most of the brokers are beginning to look around for jobs. Then what are they doing in places like the Napoleon Club, the Park Club, the Mansion, the Bath Club, Leon and Eddie's, the Surf Club—just to mention a few of the smoother rendezvous? Where do these people who sit at the tables in the El Fatio night after night get their money? And where do the less expensive places like the Hollywood Restaurant and the Pavilion Royal?

Drop into some of the speaks in the Fifties and the East Forties and study the patrons lined up at the bar five and six deep gulping down liquor at $1 to $1.25 the gulp. Certainly, I've read that they've cut the wages of the steel workers but, of course, steel workers don't come to these places—only their bosses. I know one fellow who tossed a party recently at one of the better speaks whose bill came to $675. He tipped each of the two waiters who had served his group $5 and the head waiter $15. He's one of the chaps reported to have dropped several million dollars in the past two weeks.

I know all about this "buy your ticket for the Vanities at the box office at $3 each," but the chaps I know are paying $6 to $10 apiece for choice locations and taking anywhere from three to six friends with them. They're paying as much for the Follies and for the Scandals and for the Band Wagon, too. Where do they cool much money to go to the Paramount or the Capitol or Roxy's—but have you ever noticed the lineup of people waiting patiently for hours to get in? That doesn't look like bad times.

Of course, I know I'm talking through my hat, because every time I look at the financial pages I notice where stocks are dropping and when I turn to the other pages of the newspapers I read where this company and that has either cut salaries or reduced the forces. Every so often, right in this column, I report the fact that some firm has dropped 50 to 100 employes. My good friend tells me that this country is going to the dogs financially, and the hundreds of letters I get from readers appealing for financial aid, clinches the point—but here I go around night after night around Broadway and see people spending just as much money as ever. At least they appear to, although I know—and have reported it to you—that the night clubs were pretty badly hit last season because the spenders weren't coming around. That only applied to the night clubs, however, for when I dropped into the speaks, there they were, these same spenders—spending!

SWEETHEART

PEGGY O'NEILL brings piquant charm to "Meet My Sister," now at the Shubert.

"Buttercup" Is to the Fore

Ruth Altman, Broadway favorite, will come to Boston next week to join the Civic Light Opera forces at the Colonial, singing the roles of Josephine in "H. M. S. Pinafore" and the plaintiff in "Trial By Jury."

Few operetta artists have had such preparation as Ruth Altman. The grand piece of the late Benjamin Altman, she manifested a remarkable voice in childhood and was given every possible opportunity for its cultivation. One of the best New York teachers was engaged to direct her studies.

In order to get stage routine she took a place in a Ziegfeld chorus. A little later she had the opportunity of singing Mozart, Strauss, Offenbach, and Auber roles in comic and light opera under the auspices of the August Heckscher Foundation in the Little Theater, New York.

Miss Altman then toured with "Nina Rosa," after which Milton Aborn engaged her as prima donna for his New York Civic Light Opera Company, following which she joined the St. Louis Municipal Opera Company and then returned to Mr. Aborn's forces.

DRAMA DISCUSSED By Nicholas Young »-« Harleigh Schultz REVIEWS KEITH'S

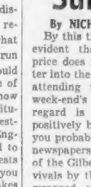
War of the Savoyards Subsides

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

By this time it is more than evident that the matter of price does not necessarily enter into the solemn business of attending the theater. The week-end's conclusion in this regard is confusing, if not positively bewildering. For, as you probably have read in the newspapers, the lesser priced of the Gilbert and Sullivan revivals by the Shuberts will be wrapped up after tonight's performance at the Lyric and be shipped to parts unknown. In the meantime, Milton Aborn's two-dollar brand of the same article will continue merrily at the Colonial.

* * *

Rather suddenly these battling Savoyards called it a day and washed up for a pleasant evening at home. At least that is how it must seem to Mr. Aborn's carolling entourage. The situation with the boys and girls at the Lyric is uncomfortably different, for they are retreating from the scene, and scurrying troops—either in the field or in the playhouse—seldom feel just right about anything. In any event, it has been made quite clear that no two-dollar show not only can hold its own against price slashing, but may also throw disorder into the camp of its foes. No greater folly has ever been devised for a budding season than this suicidal contest in comic opera. The best that could be hoped for by either battle line was a drawn fight with staggering losses on both sides. That was the preliminary opinion of the experts.



Nicholas Young

* * *

As it turned out, Milton Aborn and his heavier artillery at the Colonial routed the enemy, though he was forced at the last minute to shift his tactics and shave prices from an already announced scale of $2.50 top to $2.00, a slight maneuver in economics that unquestionably turned the tide. Regardless of the merits of the two "Mikado" productions, and quite aside from the vocal quality of the two ensembles, the Aborn contingent has enjoyed one positive advantage—it has names that ring clearly in the ears of every disciple of Gilbert and Sullivan. One need only mention William Danforth, Howard Marsh, Frank Moulan, Herbert Waterous, Hal Keyke, Fay Templeton and Vera Ross to show on which side of this field of combat lay the heavy calibred guns. The results of the fray are obvious.

* * *

Within a week's time and some several thousands of dollars dumped into what might be termed artistic delay, Mr. Sidney M. Biddell will make a second attempt to bring "Divorce Me, Dear" to the Tremont stage on Monday night. It may have been a clash of temperaments, or just a friendly misunderstanding between Pale, but somewhere in the preparatory operation it was discovered that Lillian Foster, originally a featured player, was either unwilling to carry on in the manner prescribed by the management or failed to measure up to the requirements of her role. Observers seem divided in their opinions. However, in the new deal, Mr. Biddell draws a high card for his principal player, Violet Heming. Swapping actors on the eve of a premiere is a costly experiment, as Mr. Biddell must have discovered by this time.

MELODY AND MIRTH SHARE NEW WEEK'S SPOTLIGHT

RUTH ALTMAN, popular songstress, who will be heard in "Pinafore," at the Colonial.

VIOLET HEMING, whose talents will grace "Divorce Me, Dear," at the Tremont.

HELEN BROOKS adds her own graceful bit—you might say invigorating—to the lively comedy called "The Vinegar Tree" at the Wilbur. A conflict of youth with middle age.

FROLICSOME

ANITA PAGE, charming star of screenland, in "Sidewalks of New York," at Loew's State.

"Street Scene" at Orpheum

King Vidor's production of "Street Scene," based on the Pulitzer prize stage hit, is the current screen attraction at Loew's Orpheum Theater.

The Great Nicola, master magician, presents an excellent program of tricks and illusions that virtually baffled yesterday's capacity audiences. Nicola's show spells entertainment throughout. Many of his tricks are new to magic-lovers, especially the one in which a baby elephant vanishes in full view of the amazed onlookers.

Abbot and Robey, assisted by Ida Mae Sparrow, are seen in a comedy act of unusual merit. Poul Yocan and company in a dazzling dance revue; Sandy Deason, "Oklahoma's all-around musician," and Cameron and Lee, female bicyclists complete this week's all-star vaudeville bill.

Variety Stars at Boston

Charles King heads the new show on stage today at the RKO Keith-Boston. Honorable Mr. Wu, with his Chinese Collegians and Far East Co-eds, brings a touch of the Orient. Whitey, a canine star, entertains in an act entitled "Benevolence." Whitey is a fox terrier. "Benevolence" is the story of a lost dog and a human policeman. It is humorous and affords Whitey the opportunity to appear as an actor.

"No Rhyme or Reason," is the vehicle utilized by Si Wills and Joan Davis to put over a variety of exceptional funny comedy bits hooked together with songs and dances. Silver & Sharpe and Burns & Phillips appear in "Justa Foursome."

The Week's Playbills

TREMONT—"Divorce Me, Dear" (opening Monday), a new comedy by Katherine Roberts. For this presentation Violet Heming joins the cast. Included in the supporting company are Francesca Bruning, Robert Vivian, Richie Ling, G. P. Huntley, Jr., Anne Sutherland and Reginald Mason. Staged by Antoinette Perry; produced by Sidney M. Biddell.

* * *

COLONIAL—"Pinafore" and "Trial By Jury" (opening Monday), a revival of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic operas. Included in the cast are Fay Templeton, cooped out of retirement to play "Little Buttercup"; Frank Moulan, Howard Marsh, William Danforth, Ruth Altman, Herbert Waterous and Allen Waterous. Staged by Milton Aborn; produced by the Civic Light Opera Company.

* * *

WILBUR—Mary Boland in "The Vinegar Tree." (Third week.) A middle-aged matron discovers, to everybody's enjoyment, that Love's Young Dream belongs exclusively to the young. The last week.

PLYMOUTH—"Precedent," a stern drama in which American courts of law are given some rough handling. The last week.

Another Triumph for Arliss Is Picture at Metropolitan

By HARRIS MORGAN

George Arliss, premier male of the movie species, can always be counted on to play the master actor. Also, because it is his wont to supervise all pictures in which he stars, his name becomes an imprint of superb production. So "Alexander Hamilton," now at the Metropolitan, is a new triumph for him.

* * *

It is with Hamilton, the man, that the play deals, rather than with Hamilton the financial genius who established the credit of the young republic, wrote its Constitution and became its first Secretary of the Treasury. Great questions like the assumption of the Revolutionary War debt, the establishment of credit and the choice of a site for the National Capitol were occupying the mind of Hamilton.

Then echo support Mr. Arliss are Doris Kenyon, Dudley Digges, Alan Mawbray, Rolfe Harolde, Juna Collyer, Charles Middleton, Montague Love, Lionel Belmore, Morgan Wallace, Gwendolin Logan, John T. Murray, Charles Evans, John Larkin, Evelyn Hall, Russell Simpson and James Durkin. John Adolfi's direction is notable.

* * *

On the stage is seen a splendid revue entitled "Limehouse Nights," in which are featured the Wing Wah Troupe, Armando and Lita, Warren and Inman, Don Carroll, Five Double Dance Teams, and the Sunkist Ensemble.

Buster Keaton Makes Merry on Screen at Loew's State

Buster Keaton's frozen face and oldtime antics are still sure-fire producers of mirth, as his work in "Sidewalks of New York," feature on the Loew's State screen this week, adequately proves. In all the situations wherein the famous clown is given opportunity to do his stuff in his own way, he proves a hilarious success.

* * *

"Sidewalks of New York" is Keaton's first picture since "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath." The "dead-pan" comedian enacts a millionaire's son who falls in love with a girl in the tenement district and, to win her, attempts to reform her tough small brother. The boy is mixed up with an older gang and is a "blond bandit" for the adult thug. Keaton manages to get the gangs after him, intent on putting him on the "spot." A hilarious sequence in a gymnasium, a thrilling gang chase with a comedy finish, a "show" that winds up in gun play are among the high spots in the picture.

Keaton's admirers will like him best when the movie permits him to "gag" in his own manner. This is not always; and that is the picture's weakness. For it goes more serious than has been the custom with Keaton films. It is in his comedy chances that the star is best and the movie most amusing. Often it is highly entertaining. And the star has excellent comic support from Edwards, here seen without his ukulele and given over to fun for fun's sake, and faring better than ever he did.

Lenses Pry Into Deep Blue Sea

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Thanks to expert camera technique, "Fifty Fathoms Deep," on screen at RKO Keith's, is not only entertaining but has a lens tempo rarely seen in the talkies. The panorama rises above its interwoven story. The cameras swing and sweep regardless of the dialoguers, the imagination is incited as it should be by every true motion picture, and there is a notable light and shadow continuity that proves a tower of strength to a rather weak plot.

* * *

"Fifty Fathoms Deep" has its thrills. It has its tensely interesting sequences. It has its technical surprises.

Richard Cromwell

But all these are due, not to the performers, though these mime along satisfactorily enough; but wholly to Roy William Neill, a director who has been able to weave the threads of his own conceptions into a meritorious screen effort. He details, and suggests; a touch of artistry here and there, and almost everywhere, until one is made to know that this is a director's movie. Seldom does he make any concession to speech; he prefers to let his lenses speak, to say it with the cameras. Therein, he is wise, and miles ahead of a good many of his Hollywood colleagues. If he keeps on, he may help bring the American screen within calling distance of the Russians and the Germans.

Neill's test is met when he makes the impossible seem very, very real; thus he carries the narrative entrusted to him as dramatic matter over its many rough spots. And he actually puts punch into it, gives it a decided "kick" and brings his actors into the pace he sets. They all do better than is their wont.

The tale concerns the fortunes of a couple of divers, Jack Holt and Richard Cromwell. There are two ladies in the case; Loretta Sayers is the chief feminine lure, with the very attractive Mary Doran as the runner-up. There is a grip in the story toward the finish where the diving pals find happiness in friendship again after a wreck that conceals from Cromwell the fate of his "sweetie."

Miss Sayers, Holt and Cromwell get along very nicely with their roles, and Mr. Neill makes "Fifty Fathoms Deep" good cinema fare.

"Enemies of the Law" Is Featured at the Gayety

Starting tomorrow, the bill at the Gayety for the first half of the week will be "Enemies of the Law," featuring Mary Nolan and on the same bill Claudette Colbert and Frederick March in "Honor Among Lovers."

Bowdoin Square

At the Bowdoin Square the top film will be "Inbound." Another good picture on the same bill will be "Runaround," which unfolds the life of a Broadway butterfly. Wednesday a cabaret night with extra vaudeville.

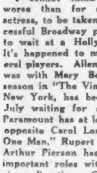
BARRYMORES GET THE 'BREAKS'

John and Lionel Are to Get the Best in Stories at M-G-M Studios

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, Sept. 26—The Broadway stage will call John Barrymore in vain. Some other actor will have to delight fastidious theater-goers with Hamlet and his ghost for John remains here in picture land, a special Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player. Metro has certainly done well by Lionel Barrymore who today is probably Hollywood's finest character actor. Of course, Lionel did equally well by M-G-M, but he might not have had such world-wide recognition if Irving Thalberg hadn't put him in "A Free Soul." John will get an equal break for Irving promises not a make any bad story selections this coming year. John Barrymore's first picture, I hear whispered, will be "Arsene Lupin." Both he and Lionel will be in the same picture. That ought to make it a double attraction. That is, if the two Barrymore's score the way they did when they appeared in the stage play, "The Jest."



Louella O. Parsons

* * *

I cannot think of anything worse than for an actor, or actress, to be taken out of a successful Broadway play and made to wait at a Hollywood studio. It's happened to more than several players. Allen Vincent, who was with Mary Boland all last season in "The Vinegar Tree" in New York, has been here since July waiting for a movie job. Paramount has at length put him opposite Carol Lombard in "No One Man." Rupert Hughes' play, Arthur Pierson has one of the important roles with Lloyd Corrigan directing. Carole, by the way, is in better health. She and William Powell were dining at the Ambassador last week, which was the first time she had been out since her illness.

* * *

Hollywood Permanent

Someone once spoke of Hollywood as having a floating population. I don't think that is exactly true because many of the film people have permanent homes here. Yet, necessarily there is a lot of commuting between here and New York. Helen Hayes finishes her contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and leaves with her small daughter today to join her husband, Charles MacArthur. M-G-M will probably take up her option and we'll see her back in Hollywood again. Nancy Carroll, who left her bridegroom, Bolton Mallory, shortly after her marriage to make a picture in Hollywood, is also getting ready to return East. She, also, takes her small daughter with her. Nancy will be starred in "Wild Beauty" her next picture which will be filmed at the Long Island studio. Pauline Frederick, who for so many years played leading roles and who now sensibly agrees to mother roles and second leads, may play opposite Miss Carroll.

* * *

"The Doctor" is a Hungarian story; the locale is Hungary, and the medical university are of the foreign type. Warners, with Michael Curtiz, a Hungarian director, on the lot have decided it might be a good idea to have him direct Richard Barthelmess. Mike, however, will not direct until he finishes with Lil Dagover in "I Spy."

* * *

Seen and Heard

The bride is due home. Margaret Livingstone who married Paul Whiteman about two weeks ago is leaving her bridegroom temporarily to fulfill a screen engagement she made early last spring. Harry Cohn, who has a contract with Miss Livingstone, is searching for the right story for her. She will probably be besieged with requests to give in detail her receipt for getting thin—the diet she gave Mr. Whiteman when he reduced 60 odd pounds. Speaking of getting thin, Carl Freedmanson, Swedish masseuse, has been established at the RKO-Pathe studios to give expert treatment to the stars and executives. Cecil De Mille writes to say he is visiting Palestine, Egypt, Russia and other countries where the locale of his pictures were laid.

BERTRAM VIERTEL for Russia, a guest. Also MRS. VIERTEL, MRS. SAM GOLDWYN wearing the new long hair cut and MRS. GEORGE FITZMAURICE discussing Russian government with MRS. SCHULBERG, ELEANOR BOARDMAN, MRS. HERMAN MANKIEWICZ, MRS. ARTHUR HORNBLOW, CARMEL MYERS, ALICE GLAZER, among others. BARBARA STANWYCK selecting her wardrobe for "Forbidden." SALLIE EILERS, MAE MARSH, JAMES DUNN and other members of the "Over the Hill" company on location at Sonora. ANTONIO MORENO planning to officiate for the first time as Harlequin at the Masquers' revel tomorrow night. That's all today. See you Monday!

LISTENING TO REASON

WILLIAM BONELLI is the suave prosecuting attorney on the left; Jeane Wood is the demure but entirely willing witness in "Precedent," on last week at Plymouth.

'Kuties' Are to Play Howard

Another Columbia Association show comes to the Old Howard Monday. The program comprises burlesque, vaudeville and talking pictures. The burlesque bears the title, "Kuddling Kuties," headed by Max Fields, who for years has been a headliner. With this organization is Jean Jordan, Anna Fink, Jeanette Allehasi, Jackie James, Sally Blackstone, all stars. Jack Erickson is the associate comedian. Sid Gold, Irving Witt, and Bob Randall will offer something new.

Sally Van

In vaudeville, Foster and Van have a singing and dancing specialty. The Three Ballists and Ewing Eaton will appear.

Flower Turns to Romance

At the Fine Arts this week, lovers of the unusual in cinematography will have an opportunity to view a film with the scenes laid in the heart of Paris, entitled "Jean de la Lune" (Moondreaming John). The story deals with the young florist dreaming of creating a new flower and, by love and trust, he "creates" a new woman.

The characters include Rene Lefebvre, recently seen in that delightful French film, "The Million," and Michel Simon. It was directed by Jean Choux, based on the story of Marcel Achard. Madeleine Renaud is a member of the famous Comedie-Francaise and takes the leading feminine role.

The exhibition of original drawings and etchings by Boston's own Morgan Dennis, continues. The collection includes heads of famous prize dogs and several scenes of Ireland. These Irish etchings are a record of an interesting trip by Dr. Dennis. Mr. Dennis has won international fame as a reproducer of characteristic dog poses.

ROPE FINISHED COLLINGS, SAYS WITNESS

to be annoyed when he came into court because a constable had been dispatched to bring him in. He was soon engaged in a sharp dispute with Dr. William B. Gibson, the coroner who conducted the inquiry, as to how he should testify.

Both are elderly, gray-haired gentlemen. The coroner warned him that he might soon find himself in contempt, whereupon Dr. Schultze shouted:

"I will not find myself in contempt."

Dist. Atty. Blue tactfully ventured to ask Dr. Schultz if he found any marks of external violence on the body. The doctor had been emphasizing that drowning in salt water caused death.

"DON'T BOTHER ME"

"Oh, yes," replied Dr. Schultz, but when Blue wanted him to proceed along this line, the witness became irritated and exclaimed:

"Please don't bother me about those bruises."

Dr. Schultz suddenly decided he had testified long enough and, slapping the coroner on the shoulder, he stood up and shouted:

"Cause of death was drowning, bound hand and foot, you make your own guess, whether it was accidental, suicidal or murder. Good-bye!"

DIED STRUGGLING

Dr. Schultz was positive that Collings died struggling—that he was so tightly tied that death by drowning was inevitable.

The physician read off a curious list of numbers and said the relation of those numbers told the story of Collings' death.

The first number, 72, he said identified two quarts of fluid found in the dead man's lungs.

Five other numbers were rattled off by the doctor to represent Collings' blood vessels, blood contents, stomach and a sample of the water of Long Island Sound.

These figures proved beyond a doubt that drowning in salt water caused Collings' death, the physician declared.

Herbert Collings discredited any suggestion that his brother had secret relations with other women, or that he had made any enemies, so far as he knew.

WIDOW ALL NERVES

Because of her extremely nervous condition, Mrs. Collings was not permitted by her counsel to appear today, nor could it be learned if she would go on the stand Oct. 2, to which date the inquest was adjourned.

Angered by the "Roman Holiday" aspect of the coroner's inquest into the murder of Collings Judge Kelly declared today that another request for her appearance at the postponed hearing would be flatly refused.

Mrs. Collings was reported on the verge of complete collapse at her home here today. The terrific strain under which she has been laboring since the midnight murder of her husband on Sept. 6 came to a pathetic climax yesterday near the close of her examination at the inquest in Huntington, L. I., town hall.

GRILLED FOUR HOURS

In the stifling little court room, crowded in on all sides by morbidly curious, forced to bare the most intimate details of her life with the murdered man, Mrs. Collings' remarkable courage failed her after four hours of questioning.

A five-minute recess was ordered and the frail widow, dry-eyed, but obviously struggling to retain her composure, was half-dragged through the sweating mass of humanity that milled about the courtroom all through the day.

An hour later she was still lying exhausted in an anteroom, attended by her father-in-law, Dr. Henry P. Collings.

Outside the jammed courthouse a crowd of several hundred waited for a glimpse of the woman whose story of her husband's murder on his yacht in Long Island Sound was repeatedly declared unbelievable by investigating officials.

The incredulous were doomed to disappointment, however, for her account of the weird happenings on the Collings' yacht differed in not the slightest detail from those she had previously told.

Disorder reigned in the courtroom throughout the proceeding. Women and girls were in great majority and they fought and clawed for vantage points on radiators and window sills. Reporters were forced to take notes by placing their pads on the shoulders of those standing in front of them.

Younger females in Eugenie hats struggled to retain their balance and directed cold stares at photographers who elbowed them roughly as they leveled cameras at the black-garbed witness.

Mutterings were heard all over the room as the crowd milled and seethed. At the height of the morning session a baby carried into the room in the arms of its curious mother howled a protest and a bailiff shouted:

"Take that baby out of here."

Coroner Gibson rapped for order with his gold-headed cane and amended the order.

"Take the mother and baby out of here," he thundered.

Through all the pandemonium Mrs. Collings' cultured voice went on with the story of her husband's murder—of her futile efforts to save him from the clutches of the two "pirates" who boarded the Penguin in the darkness of the Sound—of her horror when she heard the crash of a bottle smashing against his skull—of the trashing in the sea as his bound body struggled convulsively for life.

She told with remarkable lucidity of the events that followed her departure from the yacht in the canoe of the pirates of her thought that by leaving she might save her little daughter, Barbara, from her kidnapers—of sighting a boat drawing near the scene where her husband's body floundered—of her hope that he would be saved and that she would be able to send rescuers to her child lying alone in the drifting Penguin.

COUNSEL OBJECTS

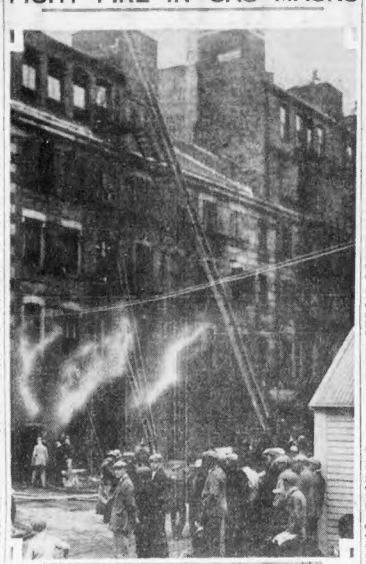
Close to the witness stand and almost on a level with her face a microphone was placed in readiness for her afternoon testimony. Judge Kelly offered an indignant objection, but was promptly overruled by the coroner.

A protest to Magistrate Harry A. Murphy, however, resulted in a hurried meeting of the courtmouse commission, at which an order was issued for the removal of the apparatus.

Four Prisoners Lashed

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 26 (AP)—Four negro prisoners were whipped today in the Newcastle County workhouse as part of the sentences imposed on them by the Court of General Sessions. Warden Elmer J. Leach applied the lash.

FIGHT FIRE IN GAS MASKS



Flames fed by chemicals forced firemen to don gas masks to battle a two-alarm blaze at Lewis wharf today. A pall of smoke covered the waterfront, attracting a large crowd. The fire was confined to storerooms of a chemical company. Photo shows ladder placed against structure and the crowd outside. (Staff photo.)

DAYLIGHT TIME OVER TONIGHT

Commuters get a new time table.

Remember the clock tonight.

The clock is turned back—not forward.

Just a few timely hints for the semi-annual change that takes place tonight.

Daylight saving is over.

Though it officially ends at 2 a. m. tomorrow, preparations are usually made the night before as the clocks are set back before retiring.

Thus, to eliminate the complications that might arise Sunday morning were the outside world standard and your household saving.

Railroads have adjusted their schedules to eliminate the changes that were made for the summer months, and most of all—

The hour of slumber that was "lost" last April, comes back tonight.

TIME TURNS THE TABLES

"Don't forget, time-tables all change, too, at 2 o'clock in the morning," petite Diana Rosing, 3, daughter of Marjorie Adams, the motion picture star, reminds as she tries to decipher what all the change is about. (Staff photo.)

DOUBLE GAS TRAGEDY IS ACCIDENT

A verdict of accidental death by asphyxiation was returned today in the deaths of John Fleming, 76, and his wife, Elizabeth, 72, of Holden pl., Roxbury, found dead last night in their camp in Pond lane, Randolph.

Dr. Fred E. Jones, medical examiner, who viewed the bodies, stated they had apparently been dead for some 18 hours. He said the aged couple had probably gone to bed and forgotten to turn off the gas. Utensils were found on the stove, one of them containing tea, which had boiled over, apparently extinguishing the flame.

The couple were well known in Randolph, and nearby residents became alarmed when they failed to appear yesterday. Last night they investigated and discovered the tragedy.

ROXBURY MAN IS LOST OFF SHIP

Authorities in Bangor, Me., and along the route of the Boston-to-Bangor steamship today were attempting to account for the disappearance of Lewis L. Richards, 65, of Maywood st., Roxbury, believed to have gone overboard from the boat around midnight Friday night.

Richards' clothing and personal effects were found at various places on the steamship. A black topcoat and a brown soft hat were in the cabin. In the hatband were two checks, one of which called for a bag in the checkroom.

Identity was established from papers and an identification card in the bag.

At the Richards home in Roxbury his wife said he had been despondent over stock market losses. She believed him en route to New York, she said.

16 BUILDINGS IN RESORT BURN

Mountaindale, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—Fire swept through this summer resort today, destroying 16 buildings and damaging others.

Firemen summoned from seven neighboring villages kept them from spreading.

The Ontario & Western Railroad station and freight house and the New York Telephone Company building were among those destroyed.

The fire was believed to have started in a souvenir shop which had been closed for the season. No estimate of the loss was immediately available.

10 P. C. PAY CUT PLAN OF MILLS

Lawrence, Sept. 26 (AP)—The Lawrence Tribune today says textile workers in Greater Lawrence, totalling more than 20,000, are being asked to accept a 10 per cent cut in wages, effective Oct. 11.

Textile company officials, the Tribune says, are acquainting their employes with what they said was the necessity for the cut in order that they might compete profitably with mills in other sections of the country.

Historical Assn. Post for Bay State Man

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—Concluding its 32d annual meeting today, the New York State Historical Association re-elected Dixon Ryan Fox of Columbia University as its president, and also re-elected all other state officers.

Horace A. Moses of Springfield, Mass., was elected to the newly-created office of third vice-president.

Sweetser Ready to Probe Alien Help

Gen. E. Leroy Sweetser, state commissioner of labor and industries, said today he would order an investigation if ames H. Brennan of the Governor's Council formally makes his allegations that out-of-state contractors are employing alien workers at 30 cents an hour on highway jobs in Massachusetts. Sweetser's authority does not, however, extend to common laborers.

Sen. Couzens Raps Critics of Legion

Detroit, Sept. 26 (AP)—Senator James Couzens, in a statement today discussing the action of the American Legion in asking a referendum on the prohibition law, said that "any individual or group who complains about submitting any question to the people cannot have much faith in our form of government."

Leader Says South Is For Roosevelt

New York, Sept. 26 (INS)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt will carry the Solid South in 1932 if he is the Democratic party's nominee for President, Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald, who was to return to Texas today, predicted in an interview here. Fitzgerald is a southern political editor.

WHERE FIREBUG SET BLAZE

Theresa Sasso of Haynes st., East Boston, pointing to the spot where the fire near her home started. Authorities say a firebug set the blaze after soaking the floors in kerosene. (Staff photo.)

EAST BOSTON HOME FIRED

Police sought a firebug today as the man responsible for a blaze in an unoccupied three-story house at 6 Haynes st., East Boston, which for a time menaced steamship docks and nearby sections of the waterfront.

According to police and fire officials, the fire had been set after the floors had been soaked with kerosene.

The blaze broke out in the first floor and was seen by a passing citizen, who sounded the alarm.

Firemen fought hard to keep the flames from spreading to nearby dwellings.

CRASH SENDS 4 TO HOSPITAL

Four men were seriously injured and two cars were demolished in a collision at Mount Auburn and Adams sts., Watertown, early today. One car tipped over and police were forced to cut a hole in the top to release the injured men.

A machine operated by Ruby Sarkesian, 30, of 223 Arlington st., Watertown, collided with a sedan operated by John Dardis, 22, of 28 Hawthorne st., Watertown. In the car with Dardis was Edmund Hickey, 22, of 25 Green st., Watertown, and John Collins, 24, of 9 Gilky ct., Watertown. The Dardis car tipped over.

BANK ROBBED OF $10,000

Westmont, Ill., Sept. 26 (AP)—Five men invaded the First State Bank of Westmont today, menaced ten persons with pistols and escaped with $10,000. Westmont is a suburban village 18 miles west of Chicago.

The robbers drove to the bank in an auto that had been stolen a few hours before from a Chicago physician.

Fog Delays Liner

Because of fog in Long Island Sound, the S. S. Saturnia, due here at 9 a. m. today, reported from 15 to 24 hours late and may not dock until tomorrow morning.

WOMAN HURT IN TRIPLE CRASH

Mrs. Samuel McFarlane, 55, of 6 Herrick st., Beverly, was seriously injured and several were shaken up this afternoon in a triple auto crash on the marsh rd., between Revere and Lynn, near Fox Hill bridge. She was taken to the Lynn Hospital. Fifteen stitches were taken in a head wound and she also has a broken right kneecap.

Police say a car driven by Michael J. Glynn, a naval radioman, living in Rockport, skidded head on into a car operated by Miss Edith E. Fritz, 23, of 102 Arnold st., New Bedford, in which Mrs. MacFarlane was riding.

This car then hit a third machine.

HOME AGAIN FROM FRANCE

CHURCH NEWS

"Why Are We Fashion Slaves?"

Dr. A. Z. Conrad will express his opinion from his pulpit tomorrow morning before his sermon on a number of questions that have been put to him. His first one deals with a fundamental question of prohibition. 1—How far should a guest set aside his own convictions to conform to the customs of his host and hostess? 2—Why are both men and women such slaves to fashion? 3—Do you regard a college education necessary to a business career? 4—The study of books bores me; then why should my parents drive me to school? 5—Have my parents any right to say to me, "Get busy or get out?"

Musical Rally at Dudley St. Church

The great musical evening rally service at the Dudley Street Baptist Church, Roxbury, next Sunday, will feature the Florida Colored Jubilee singers, together with the vested chorus of 50 and the regular Dudley mixed quartet, Florence G. Young, soprano, Edith Weyn Wilson, contralto; Harold Tripp, tenor, and A. Ralph Tailby, bass.

Pastor Brooks has arranged this musical rally as a contribution to the spiritual uplift effort that is spreading among the churches at this time.

Federation Still on Boston Common

The School of Theology of Boston University is sending a team of preachers to conduct the open-air service on Boston Common, 2:15-4:30, tomorrow. This group of men represents different states of the Union as well as England. They are as follows: Warren Bright, Ohio; George Gooderham, England; Arthur Faus, Pennsylvania; Smith Chism, Maryland; George Kelsey, Wisconsin, and Almon Cable, Indiana, with Glore Renneau, Oklahoma, as leader. Cornetists, George Burnworth and Clarence Achberger.

More Lectures by Prof. G. H. LeBarr

In a series of three free lectures to be given in Repertory Hall, 264 Huntington ave., beginning tomorrow evening, by Prof. LeBarr, the well-known psychologist, he will show why he believes the present depression is 75 per cent psychological. The professor has just completed a tour around the world, observing conditions everywhere. Following each lecture there will be tests and demonstrations, and the reading of character by the study of faces. The public is invited to come without charge.

Dr. S. A. Eliot Back in Pulpit

"Making Tomorrow Better Than Yesterday" will be the title of Dr. Eliot's sermon for tomorrow morning at the 11 o'clock service of the Arlington street church. The sermon will be appropriate to the beginning of the new church and college year.

Lord's Day League in South End Church

Dr. Robert Watson, general secretary of the Lord's Day League of New England, will preach next Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m. in the First Presbyterian Church, Boston.

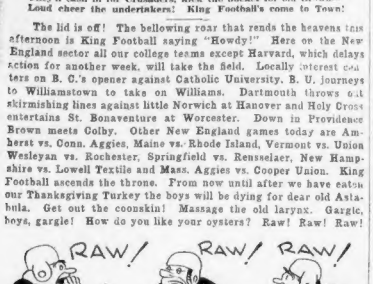
They'll cash in for Crusaders, kick the bucket for old Brown—
Loud cheer the undertakers! King Football's come to Town!

The lid is off! The bellowing roar that rends the heavens this afternoon is King Football saying "Howdy!" Here on the New England sector all our college teams except Harvard, which delays action for another week, will take the field. Locally interest centers on B. C.'s opener against Catholic University. B. U. journeys to Williamstown to take on Williams. Dartmouth throws out skirmishing lines against little Norwich at Hanover and Holy Cross entertains St. Bonaventure at Worcester. Down in Providence Brown meets Colby. Other New England games today are Amherst vs. Conn. Aggies, Maine vs. Rhode Island, Vermont vs. Union Wesleyan vs. Rochester, Springfield vs. Rensselaer, New Hampshire vs. Lowell Textile and Mass. Aggies vs. Cooper Union. King Football ascends the throne. From now until after we have eaten our Thanksgiving Turkey the boys will be dying for dear old Astabula. Get out the coonskin! Massage the old larynx. Gargle, boys, gargle! How do you like your oysters? Raw! Raw! Raw!

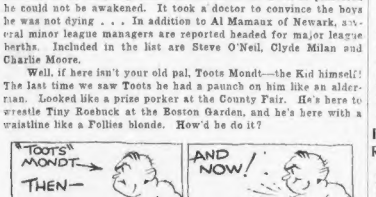


And a couple of Faugh-a-ballaghs and Erin-go-braghs for the Tips and the Bay State Celts, who meet at "hurley" at Dilhoy Field tomorrow. There'll be more pates cracked than at an old-fashioned Pathron Day in County Wicklow. P. S.—And if the Swede compositor again sets "country" for "county" we ban send him back to Stockholm, By Yimminy!

Here's how Fordham, B. C.'s old boy friend, adopted Maroon for its color. Rev. Fr. O'Laughlin, S. J., tells us all about it in the current issue of the Fordham Alumni Magazine. The late Stephen A. Wall, '75, was selected to choose the color. He knew what he wanted but couldn't think of its name. He described it to his fellow students as "the color of old red wine when you hold the bottle to the light and look through it." That was enough. The boys promptly adopted it. See what the gang in the back room will have!

Opinion is growing that Paul Derringer's fast low ball and his bewildering change of pace certainly will bother the Athletics in the coming Woild Serious . . . The players think that Gabby Street almost certainly will shoot Lefty Hallahan at the "A's" in the opener . . . In addition to Hack Wilson and Shanty Hogan, who were fined for breaking training rules, several other star players are reported to have strayed off the reservation. One of them, a star shortstop, who has been on the wagon for two years, recently broke his pledge and was carried to his hotel so plastered he could not be awakened. It took a doctor to convince the boys he was not dying . . . In addition to Al Mamaux of Newark, several minor league managers are reported headed for major league berths. Included in the list are Steve O'Neil, Clyde Milan and Charlie Moore.

Well, if here isn't your old pal, Toots Mondt—the Kid himself! The last time we saw Toots he had a paunch on him like an alderman. Looked like a prize porker at the County Fair. He's here to wrestle Tiny Roebuck at the Boston Garden, and he's here with a waistline like a Follies blonde. How'd he do it?



Dartmouth is afflicted with a flock of star backs and a supposedly weak line. Graduation wrecked the Hanover line. The loss of Paul Crehan and Gay Bromberg left hard gaps to fill. Cannell has so many good backs he doesn't know what to do with 'em. Bill Morton, Aaron Frigard, Bill McCall, Ward Donner, Bob Wilkin, Red Porter, Bill Brister, Dick Haugan, all again are in harness. Will "Semmy" Fishman, sophomore quarter, who many of the experts are raving over, keep some of the veteran backs on the sidelines? Fishman is an inch shorter than Albie Booth, but packs 180 pounds on his midget frame. He's as wide as the proverbial barn door. He hits the line low and hard. Watch him!

Assuming that the Sharkey-Walker bout was waged strictly on its merits, and we are told by those who should know that it really was, Jack Sharkey certainly has gone back. Sharkey will have to be near his best to beat Primo Carnera, who this writer believes is the most underestimated fighter in the game. This is the first fight the giant Italian really has trained for. We believe his work will be a revelation.

There is one way Jack Sharkey may prove us all wrong. Archibald, all wrong. If the Squire goes into a low crouch at the opening bell and keeps low down and religiously refrains from jabbing or swinging at the head and concentrates his fire solely on the body and that part of the body just under the heart, he may "get the Big Fellow. Other opponents made the mistake at swinging at Primo's supposedly fragile jaw. Primo is weak in the mid-section. A sparring partner cracked a rib at Miami when Primo was training for Maloney. Carnera has trouble bending to meet an opponent in a crouch. If Sharkey stays in a low crouch and keeps whanging at the one "spot" on Carnera's short ribs, the Sailor may win. Otherwise the giant Italian is likely to hand Jack the beating of his gay young life.

"Judge not and he not judged," is the burden of our song
Hand out no wise info, and they can't prove you wrong.
Canary cage we're locking tight, but after the birdie has flown,
Swell guy to give advice, when we don't follow our own!

CHEERIO, MR. REFEREE! BLOW THE WHISTLE! B. C.'S READY!

You bet they are! And here are the Eagles taking the field against Catholic University at Fenway this afternoon. Left to right on the line are GALLAGHER, COUHIG, TAYLOR, DOWNES, LARKIN, BENNETT and MUSCO. Aren't they a bunch of huskies, Aloysius? You said it! Has anybody here seen Kelley? Sure we have! He's third from the left in the backfield—Capt. Joe Kelley. Left to right in the backfield are —RYDER, FREITAS, KELLEY and CALLERY. They are all set to run C. U. ragged. B. C.'s all set! Let's go!

Gangster Threat Yarn False, Says Sharkey

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Sharkey today branded as false the story from New York to the effect that threats by gangsters was the real reason why he refused to go through with his bout with Primo Carnera at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, on October 1.

Jack Conway

"I have not been threatened by anybody," said Sharkey as he was having his left hand baked by Barney Fox at Jim Toland's Gym. "I read a story in New York which claimed that some gangsters were going to stick a gun into my stomach if I didn't lose to Carnera.

"That yarn was pure unvarnished bunk. Nobody has tried to put the threat on me. Neither has anybody asked me to lose to Carnera.

"Take a look at the swelling in the vicinity of the knuckle of the little finger of my left hand and you have the reason why I preferred to battle Carnera on October 12 rather than on October 1. I hurt my left hand in the Walker fight. While getting ready for Carnera, I suffered a bone bruise on the old injury. I haven't claimed that I broke a bone or suffered a fracture, but I did receive a bad bone bruise.

Denies He Plans to Retire From Ring

"The hand looks pretty good now, but it didn't at the time I first notified Jimmy Johnston I would require a postponement.

"I know that I must lick Carnera or else I shall be pushed aside as a principal in major boxing contests. I intend to remain in the boxing game despite all these stories about my retiring. I don't want to step down with the second and third raters. Therefore, I am anxious to be right physically when I tackle Carnera.

"Since the Carnera bout was announced, there has been talk that it was fixed, that I had been threatened, and that Primo must win under any conditions.

"I have made a great deal of money in the boxing game. I have done so by giving my best efforts every time I have entered the ring. I shall continue this policy as long as I remain in the boxing game."

Sharkey stated he would resume active training at Toland's Gym today. He will continue training at Toland's next week. He will return to Stillman's Gym, New York the latter part of next week.

Posts $5000 He Will Box Carnera Oct. 12

The American heavyweight champion told this writer he had mailed a certified check for $5000 to the New York Athletic Commission as a guarantee that he will go through with his bout with Carnera on October 12.

"This ought to knock over the rumors that I'm not going to fight Carnera," said Sharkey. "My money is up. My fists will be on October 12.

"I don't believe these reports that I am not in good condition. I weighed 202 pounds when I broke camp in New York. I boxed better in the gym than I have since I fought Schmeling.

"Tommy Laughran watched me work out on two occasions. He told me that I looked like the old Sharkey, and that my boxing impressed him. I'll get a Schmeling match yet."

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 26 (AP)—Capt. Stan Yudicky will be on the sidelines today when his Dartmouth varsity football team opens its 1931 season with the Norwich Cadets. The Green coaches, a bit worried over a knee injury sustained by Yudicky, plan to keep him out of action until his services are actually needed.

Coach Jackson Cannel of Dartmouth will start a veteran backfield behind a line shattered by last June's graduation. The Green's forward wall, minus such stars as Bromberg, Crehan, Nims and Andres, lacks much of its 1930 power.

Coach "Dutch" Connor, making his first start with a Norwich eleven, will bring a squad of 30 men to the fray, which has heretofore ended in a Cadet slaughter. The Green defeated Norwich last year 79 to 0.

GOOD GOLF

BY CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

If you have a preponderance of your weight on your right foot during your address, instead of being braced against your left leg and weight more evenly distributed, in all likelihood your left leg will be loose throughout your swing. This can lead to persistently bad shots while seemingly your form and swing are working in smooth order. You lose, in other words, that left-foot grip of the ground, a solidity on that side which is necessary throughout. With this left-foot grip, a sort of inch-hold you might say, the left foot slides back into a position and the left leg stiffens, thus giving you purchase against the ball.

5 OGELTHORPE STARS BANNED

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 26 (AP)—Five varsity football players at Oglethorpe University were suspended today for misconduct in the college dining hall Friday night.

Dean D. F. Sellars, who announced the suspension for a period of a week, did not disclose the nature of the misconduct.

The boys, all of whom had expected to play in the season's first game with Chattanooga University today, are Charlie George, end; Harry Wen, halfback; Jeff Robson, fullback; Young, a guard, and Shoue, a reserve center.

3 Carnegie Stars Are Out for Season

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—Ineligibility of three Carnegie Tech football players was announced here today by Judge Wally Steffen, coach, as the Tartan eleven prepared to take the field against the University of Buffalo.

The three who will be unable to play this season are Thurston Croft, 200-pound tackle; Bernard Burzio, second-string fullback, and Walter Reuter, a third-string end. All were developing rapidly and were expected to figure prominently in later games.

The ineligibility ruling covers the entire season. Each of the three players was low in one subject last semester and took special examinations Friday. Coach Steffens said they were ready to leave wit hhe team yesterday when the dean's office notified them of their ineligibility.

Paralysis Halts Amherst Game

Amherst, Sept. 26 (AP)—Delay in the opening of Amherst College because of infantile paralysis in Western Massachusetts has resulted in the cancellation of the Amherst-Connecticut Aggies football game scheduled for today. Amherst will open its season with Princeton at Princeton, Oct. 3. The college opens Oct. 8.

Ruth Hits Pair; Leads Lou Gehrig

New York, Sept. 26 (US)—A quartet of homers from the Yankee bats routed the Senators, 8 to 3, and put the New Yorkers in the running again for the runner-up position.

Babe Ruth regained his position at the head of the home run parade by poling out two circuit clouts.

INJURED TUFTS STAR BETTER

Rushed to the Somerville Hospital after scrimmage on Thursday with complete loss of memory and possibly, fracture of the skull, Freshman Rod Tyrance of Tufts College is found to have nothing more than temporary concussion and bruises, and will probably be discharged from the hospital tomorrow.

His condition has constantly improved, and he is reported as resting comfortably his memory having nbgz returned.

Tyrance was knocked out while in scrimmage with the first team, when he received a severe kick in the back of the head. It is probable that this freshman of Attleboro and Dean Academy basketball fame will return to the frosh squad before long.

GLENNA RALLIES TO LEAD MISS HICKS, 1 UP

CHAMPION OVERCOMES EARLY LEAD

Buffalo, Country Club, Williamsville, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia, defending champion, today stood one up o Helen Hicks, of Hewlett, L. I., at the end of the first 18 holes of their 36-hole match for the national women's golf championship.

The five-times champion negotiated the 18 holes in 81, even with women's par while her younger and sturdy rival was a stroke more.

Helen had a lead of two holes on Glenna at the end of the first nine. Mrs. Vare was not hitting her long shots well and it was only fine recoveries on the green that kept her from being more than two down. Miss Hicks was'out in 38, three under par, to 40 for Mrs. Vare.

From the 10th hole on Mrs. Vare got control of her game and although she was three down after playing the 12th, she rallied to capture the next three holes to square the match. Miss Hicks was in one trap on almost all of those holes.

After halving the 16th and 17th, Glenna went into the lead by capturing the 18th. Helen's drive was hooked between two apple trees and a large apple, which was behind her ball, was removed by H. H. Ramsay, president of the U. S. G. A. But she hooked a spoon into more rough and then her third hit a tree, bounding across the fairway into still more rough. Glenna was alongside the cup in 4 and won with a five.

HOLE 1, 380 YARDS, PAR 5

Mrs. Vare had the honor and partially hooked her drive. Miss Hicks, keeping to the middle of the fairway, was 10 yards in front. Glenna's second caught the left bank of a trap on the left of the green, while Miss Hicks placed an iron shot hole high eight feet above the cup.

The champion played an explosion shot and was 25 feet away from the hole and missed her first putt. Miss Hicks' first putt rolled to the right of the cup and she put it in for a birdie 4 to become one up.

HOLE 2, 385 YARDS, PAR 5

Miss Hicks again had a slight advantage on the drives. Mrs. Vare payed her second shot on the green. Helen placed her second inside of the littleholder's. Mrs. Vare barely missed her first putt, the ball stopping on the far side of the cup. Helen's was short and then halved with fours.

HOLE 3—435 YARDS; PAR 5.

Their drives on the third hole split the rain-soaked fairway. Helen smacked a long, low brassie, which just cleared the top of a trap and was 10 yards from the green. Mrs. Vare's second was higher and did not get as much distance. They hit their approaches poorly, neither being close to the pin. Miss Hicks' first putt rimmed the cup and Glenna missed hers, the hole being divided with 5's. Miss Hicks remained 1 up.

HOLE 4; 460 YARDS; PAR 5

Glenna's drive on the fourth hole passed Helen's by a few yards, but Miss Hicks overcame this handicap when her brassie shot out-distanced Mrs. Vare's and fell just short of the green. Mrs. Vare ran up her ball, but it was wide and short. Helen had her approach stiff. Mrs. Vare dropped her first putt and so did Miss Hicks, each for 4's.

HOLE 5, 305 YARDS; PAR 4

Driving into a strong wind, both hit good shots, but Miss Hicks had the better of them by 20 yards. Their seconds went into a trap right of the green. Glenna's out was close to the pin and Miss Hicks put her's inside. Mrs. Vare made her putt and conceded Miss Hicks her's.

HOLE 6; 175 YARDS; PAR 3

They hooked their drives to the left of the green and Mrs. Vare pitched over the carpet and down into rough. Helen's second stayed on, 15 feet from the pin. Glenna got back nicely to be on in three and Miss Hicks' missed her first putt. Glenna sank hers and did not make her opponent take a second putt, the players halving the hole with 4's.

HOLE 7, 450 YARDS, PAR 5

Helen again outdrove Glenna. Mrs. Vare's second landed in rough on top of a trap, while Helen's was on the fairway and in front by 20 yards. Mrs. Vare barely topped her third shot to the right of the green and Miss Hicks was hole high, 12 feet to the left. Mrs. Vare's fourth was over eight feet past the cup and Helen rimmed the cup. Glenna failed on her first putt, but sank the hole to Helen, who had a 5 and now was 2 up.

HOLE 8; 225 YARDS; PAR 4.

They hit perfect tee shots to the green in spite of a strong cross wind. Helen's was the closer and Glenna putted first, the ball stopping an inch from the right side of the cup. Helen put hers alongside of Mrs. Vare's and they halved it.

HOLE 9, 430 YARDS, PAR 5

They hooked their drives. Helen played an iron to 60 yards from the green and Glenna banked hers to the edge of the opposite fairway. Mrs. Vare shot short in three while Helen placed hers 18 feet in front of the cup. Glenna's approach was 18 inches to the right and Helen just missed, both taking fives and a halve.

HOLE 10, 330 YARDS, PAR 4

Helen outdrove Glenna by 15 yards, but Mrs. Vare dropped her second about 12 feet away from the cup and sunk it for a birdie 3. Helen was trapped on her second and missed a niblick shot, barely getting on the green and then took two putts to become only one up.

HOLE 11, 390 YARDS, PAR 5

Mrs. Vare lost 15 yards on the drive and she hooked her second. The ball landed close to a rock ledge in a ravine and she played it back safe, getting on in 4. Helen hit a magnificent brassie to the right of the pin, 15 feet away. They both took two putts; Helen for a 4 and win and she went 2 up again.

HOLE 12; 185 YARDS; PAR 3.

Miss Hicks drove to the green 8 feet from the pin. Mrs. Vare's tee shot was short and she was 20 feet away with her second. Helen putted her second dead and won the hole with a 3, going 3 up.

HOLE 13; 335 YARDS; PAR 5

Helen drove 10 yards ahead of Mrs. Vare who was in the rough and played a spoon for her second. Helen played a full brassie, trying to cut off the corner of the dogleg to the right. The ball fell into a trap.

Glenna pushed her third in the rough to the right of the green and Helen played out safely, getting on the green. Mrs. Vare rolled her fourth inside of Helen's who missed and Glenna holed out for a winning 5 to be only 2 down.

HOLE 14; 405 YARDS; PAR 5

Both drives were in the fairway. Mrs. Vare's closer to the hole. Helen's second caught a trap to the left of the green, and Glenna's landed on and rolled over. Helen did not get out on her third and was 8 feet to the side of the cup. Mrs. Vare's approach was 4 feet short and they both required two putts, Mrs. Vare's 5 reducing Helen's lead to one hole.

HOLE 15—390 YARDS; PAR 5

Mrs. Vare outdrove Helen by 20 yards. Both tee shots were dead to the rough. Helen half-topped an iron, getting little distance. Glenna hit a beautiful No. 2 iron to the front edge of the green. Helen's pitch was 15 feet to the right. Mrs. Vare rolled her third dead and Miss Hicks just missed her fourth to lose the hole and square the match.

HOLE 16—173 YARDS; PAR 3.

Mrs. Vare placed her spoon shot 16 feet from the hole. Helen hit a magnificent spoon six feet from the pin. Glenna putted for a 3.

HOLE 17—450 YARDS; PAR 5.

Mrs. Vare. Glenna putted for the cup and missed by a foot. They halved the hole.

HOLE 17—450 YARDS; PAR.

Miss Hicks hooked her drive into the rough. Mrs. Vare's drive was straight, but she topped her second. Helen placed a wood shot and was out in the middle on top of a bunker. The wind caught Glenna's third and it dropped in the fairway to the right of the green. The wind also blew Helen's third and it was trapped. Mrs. Vare pitched strongly, going 20 feet by the cup. Helen played out 18 feet short. Mrs. Vare's first putt rolled over the cup and Helen's passed to the side. They got down in one more try each, halving the hole with sixes.

HOLE, 18; 420 YARDS; PAR 5.

Miss Hicks hooked her tee shot between two trees and Glenna was down the middle. Helen played a spoon but hooked into more rough and beneath a tree. Mrs. Vare's second was a beauty, 20 yards from the green. Mrs. Hicks' third hit a tree, glancing into the rough and Glenna pitched over the green. Helen's fourth was a fine recovery 12 feet from the cup. Glenna ran hers up 18 inches away. Helen missed her putt for a 5 and Glenna sank hers to go 1 up.

GLENNA, HELEN AND CUP

Glenna Vare H. H. Ramsay Helen Hicks

Just before GLENNA COLLETT VARE, left, and HELEN HICKS, right, teed off in the finals of the women's national amateur golf championship at the Buffalo Country Club this morning, the pair shook hands across the championship cup, with H. H. Ramsay, center, of U. S. Golf Association, who later in the afternoon presented cup, looking on. Fair Helen yesterday removed the British challenger and left final issue between two American Beauties.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

I saw Andy Callahan breeze through a workout at Toland's Gym in preparation for his 10-round bout with Lou Brouillard at the Boston Garden on next Friday night. Andy weighed 144 pounds and says he will get every ounce of his weight behind his socks when he opens fire on the New England welterweight champion.

The wise boys say Brouillard was daffy to sign to meet Callahan. Lou is under contract to battle Young Jack Thompson for the welterweight championship of the world at the Garden on Oct. 23 in the event Callahan licks Brouillard, the latter won't get the title shot.

Mr. Boston

Eddie Mack was on the telephone with the information that Vittorio Livan, Italian middleweight, says he will upset Benny Leonard when he meets the former world's lightweight champion at the Arena next Wednesday night. Leonard is anxious to find out if he really can fight any more. Livan has youth on his side and should furnish the veteran with a real test.

Martin Is Confident

I also saw Andy Martin, South End featherweight, working out at Toland's. Andy takes on Pancho Villa of New Bedford at the Arena on next Monday night. Villa recently won a decision over Sammy Fuller, and believes he will add the clever Martin to his list of victims.

Martin lacks color, but has always been one of the best featherweights on hand. He will give the youthful Villa an interesting evening.

Same Price tipped me that he has signed Jose Santa, Portuguese heavyweight, to meet Tom Heeney at Providence on October 5. Heeney once got $100,000 for battling Gene Tunney. Now he's satisfied to pick up a grand note here and there. Such is the boxing game.

George Freeman has booked Johnny Dixon, former college football star, to take a few belts at Eddie Harg's chin in one of the preliims to the Martin-Villa bout Monday night.

Boston Likes the A's

The Athletics still rule 8 to 5 favorites to win from the Cards in the World Series. This has always been an American League town, while Mack is a red hot favorite here.

The dope sheets also prove that American League clubs have had it on their National League rivals down through the years.

LADIES' DAY AT WIGWAM TOMORROW

By JOE CASHMAN

The big league races end tomorrow.

The final local attraction will be a doubleheader at the Wigwam between the Braves and the Phillies which will settle the ownership of sixth place and to which, due to the generosity of Judge Fuchs, all ladies will be admitted free.

The best the Warriors can do is tie the visitors for sixth, being now two games behind. If they fail to win both Sabbath tilts they will finish in seventh, one notch lower than last season.

The Braves' great early season work warranted the belief that they would end up in or very close to the first division, so no matter how they fare on the morrow, their 1931 showing will be regarded as a failure.

Yet, in many respects, the present Tribe has been the most successful National League club to represent this city in the past 10 years.

Tribe Gave Fans Thrills This Season

It has fared better financially and supplied more thrills over a greater part of a season than any of its predecessors since the coming of Judge Fuchs.

Several Braves' teams that turned in a better season's record failed to please the crowd half as much as this year's aggregation.

The Red Sox will finish up in a single game with the Senators.

They are in fifth place at this writing with a lead of a half game over both the Tigers and Browns. They may finish at the top of the second division or may end up as low as seventh.

Red Sox May Finish Season in Fifth Place

They can't land in the cellar. Consequently, their season will be recorded as a success, for the last time they escaped ending up at the bottom was in 1923.

Many of the Braves and Sox will probably be playing or seeing their last game as members of the respective outfits tomorrow. Both Manager Bill McKechnie of the Tribe and Manager John Collins of the Fenway flock are determined to get rid of some of their hired hands ere another season starts.

It wouldn't require much added strength to make each of the local entries a first-division outfit. Bob Quinn and Judge Fuchs will spend the winter trying to acquire this extra man power. May they succeed.

Harold McGrail, Brookline high halfback and ground gaining flash, pounds at the Lynn Central high tackles this afternoon at Lynn. McGrail, a noted golfer, is one of the best school backs. Husky and fast, he is a potent backfield threat. His running may help Tom Fitzgerald's team to victory today.

d "BINGO was his name!" BINGO FLYNN, husky tackle on the Catholic University eleven. He hails from Worcester and hates everything Boston. The cameraman snapped him as they were practicing before this afternoon's C. U. and B. C. game at Fenway Park.

THE DAILY DOZEN

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Five Princeton football players are reported to have been dropped from the squad for having been discovered in a speakeasy. Probably just a secret practice session in elbow bending.

" Or they might have been waiting for a street car. If you stay in a speakeasy long enough, a street car is sure to come along, or you'll think it does. Which amounts to about the same thing.

They allow spectators at a football game to take refreshing stimulants. Why bar the players who do all the work?

With a stiff slug of gin under his belt, a back could give a fine example of broken field running. Without even trying.

Suggested as the title for a new Princeton football song: "Let's hit the line for Princeton."

The final cricket game of the season is carded today. And then there will be a brief intermission until next summer.

Tommy Loughran is eager to battle Primo Carnera in place of Jack Sharkey. Carnera outweighs Loughran about 100 pounds. But that 100 doesn't include Loughran's brain.

Tommy probably believes the saying that "Faith can move a mountain." That's o.k. if Tommy could be sure just which way the "mountain" would move.

It would be too bad if Carnera ever fell on Loughran. Tommy would have to become wrestler. He could never straighten out again.

"Big Reno Fight for Dempsey!" headline. We thought Jack got his divorce the other day.

Babe Ruth set a new record with a fungo bat. But a fungo hitting record is about as valuable to Ruth as a punching bag record is to a boxer.

LYNN CENTRAL TILTS WITH BROOKLINE

Local schoolboy followers will have a chance to see one of the best early season games in years when Brockton high and Medford clash at Fulton st. field, Medford, this afternoon.

The rivalry grown up between Medford and Brockton has made them regard their annual clash as one of the big games of the year. Brockton has the edge on Medford in the matter of games won over a period of 12 years, having won seven games to Medford's four, while one tilt ended in a tie.

Medford, with a much stronger team, was crushed, 19 to 0, last year, but Coach Hubba Collins is confident that Brockton will have no such easy time today.

Medford did not look any too strong against Wakefield last week, while Brockton was defeating New Bedford Vocational. Brockton's backfield combines speed and power, while the Medford backs, for the most part, lack seasoning.

While the Medford-Brockton contest tops the schoolboy program, there are several other battles of importance. Newton high will oppose Arlington at Arlington's new field.

Arlington showed surprising strength in its opening game and Newton, conceded to be superior a few years past, will now have to prove its superiority over a bunch of inspired and hard fighting boys from Arlington.

Brookline will engage Lynn Central at Lynn in one of North Shore features. Revere will play Peabody at Peabody, with Lynn Eastern playing at Haverhill high.

Somerville is not likely to be hard pressed by Keith Academy. The Lowell team will play at Somerville in what should be an interesting battle with victory going to Somerville.

There are plenty of other games, all of purely local interest, but games that should furnish a pleasant afternoon for football sport followers.

Fittons Clash With Trojans Tomorrow

The clashing of Fitton A. C. and Quincy Trojans at Fore River Field, Quincy, tomorrow afternoon will open the local semipro football season.

The Quincy outfit last season gave the Fittons one of their hardest games. They have strength, and considerably have already engaged in two games, one of which was against the Providence Steamrollers, and have been practicing together since the middle of August.

Peres Open Season With N. Jersey Pros

Pere Marquette, opening football game tomorrow afternoon at Lincoln Park, Massachusetts ave. and Southampton st., takes on a gala color with an all-star aggregation arranged for this battle with the Paterson, New Jersey pros.

In addition to the presence of the R. C. football squad, the Home of the Guardian band of 50 pieces will furnish music before the game and between the halves. State and city officials have been invited to attend.

Marry-Go-Round

"KILLING FOR LOVE" SEEMS TO BE STYLE NOWADAYS

By HELEN ROWLAND

"DYING FOR LOVE" used to be the most popular way of expressing devotion; but nowadays "killing for love" appears to be the favorite diversion.

• • •

Or a man wraps half a pound of poisoned candy in pink tissue paper and mails it to his wife—for love.

• • •

There seems to be NOTHING one will not do for love!

• • •

More crimes have been committed in the name of "Love" than in the names of liberty, justice, honor and bridge all put together.

• • •

"LOVE," alas, seems to be the great human Alibi for doing anything selfish, wicked or unlovable, that happens to strike the fancy.

• • •

There are at least seventeen ways of "murdering for love", and of these the most humane are the old-fashioned methods of using ground glass, bullets and Paris green.

HELEN ROWLAND.

• • •

The victim of sudden death has only a moment's realization of what's happening to him; whereas the world is full of men and women who are being killed by slow torture "for love."

• • •

There is the man who is gradually strangled to death with devotion or suffocated with kisses; and there is the woman who is starved to death with neglect or frozen to death with indifference, while her husbands "toils to buy her baubles."

• • •

Many wives are slowly cut to death with criticism "for their own good." And many husbands are bullied to death by spouses who insist on overseeing their diet and mapping out their daily lives.

• • •

Lots of men sigh bitterly that they are being talked to death by adoring wives. And lots of women admit that they are being secretly bored to death by husbands who sink into a coma immediately after dinner.

• • •

You can work a husband to death to pay for your imported frocks and bridge losses—or you can wear him to death by dragging him out to dancing parties every evening after a hard, long day.

• • •

Alas, the Spanish Inquisition was a gentle and merciful thing beside the Inquisition of Love!

• • •

But, why, oh WHY, do they call it "Love"?

Our Recipes of the Round Table

SIX AWARDS of $1 each will be published for the best contributions chosen from this column during the week. The household suggestions may include not only recipes, but any sort of helpful hints for housewives—economical cookery or housekeeping in any of its forms.

Address all contributions to Martha Lee, 5 Winthrop sq, Boston.

BRAISED LEG OF MUTTON

Have your butcher bone a leg of mutton, then wipe, stuff and place in a deep pan. Cook for 5 minutes in ¼ cup of butter, 1 slice of onion, carrot, and turnip cut in dice. You can also add ¼ bay leaf and a sprig each of thyme and parsley if obtainable. Then add 3 cups of hot water and about ¼ dozen peppercorns.

Now pour this over mutton, cover closely and cook in oven slowly for 3 hours, uncovering for last ¼ hour. Remove from pan to hot platter. Now brown 4 tbsps. butter, add 4 tbsps flour, then strain and pour over mutton.—Miss A. Costello, 45 Millwood st., Dorchester.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Beat your rugs and carpets upside down on an old bed spring, then sweep. You'll be surprised at the results.

Sugar moistened with vinegar will stop hiccoughs.

A small piece of butter dropped in the kettle of vegetables keeps them from boiling over.

If you get a fish bone in you throat, swallow a raw egg as soon as possible. A sure cure.—Mrs. Carrie L. Andrews, Richmond, Maine.

THE ROAD BACK »-« By ERICH REMARQUE

Warm Bed Strange to Ernst

What Has Gone Before

Ernst, who enlisted as a schoolboy, tells the story of a group of war comrades who march home when peace is made. Arriving at their home city, Ernst and Lieutenant Ludwig Breyer are attacked by revolutionaries and rescued by the giant Willy Hameyer. He seeks his comrade, Albert Troske, and the two sally forth to look up others. At Willy's house the returned soldier is in disgrace for killing a neighbor's rooster. The demonstration ends in a protest against profiteering, and Ernst disgusted, starts home.

Now Go on With the Story

The light in the room goes out. I walk on. But suddenly the night is full of dark cries and indistinct voices, full of faces and things gone by, full of questions and of answers. I wander far beyond the limits of the city and stand at last on the slope of the Klosterberg. Below is reflected in the river. The towers seem afloat in the air and all is unbelievably still.

I stand a while and then go back to the streets and the homes. Quietly I grope my way up the stairs that lead to my home. My parents are already asleep. I feel ashamed I have come back so late.

In my room I make a light. In the corner is the bed with fresh linen sheets, the covers turned back. I sit down on it and so remain for some time lost in thought. At last I feel tired. Mechanically I stretch out and make to pull up the blanket. I sit up again suddenly—I had quite forgotten to undress. At the Front we always slept in our clothes, just as we were. Slowly I take off my uniform, put my boots in a corner. Then, hanging over the end of the bed, I perceive a nightshirt. I hardly recognize the thing. I put it on. And all at once emotion overwhelms me. I stroke the sheets. I bury myself in the pillows, I hug them to me, press myself down into them, into the pillows, into sleep, into life once again and I know one thing and only one: I am here—I am here.

LOUNGE IN CAFE

Albert and I are sitting in the Cafe Meyer by the window. Before us on the marble table are two glasses of cold coffee. We have been here three hours now without yet being able to make up our minds to drink such bitter brew. We have met the acquaintance of most varieties at the Front, but this stuff is straight stewed coal.

Three tables only are occupied. At one a couple of profiteers are making a deal over a truckload of foodstuffs; at another is a married couple reading newspapers; and at the third we are sprawling over the red plush settee.

So we remain until at last the three musicians pack up their things and the waitress, wearily in ever diminishing circles around our table. Then we pay, and slope off into the evening. It is marvelous to pass idly from one shop window to the next, not to have to trouble oneself about anything, just to be freed men.

At Struben st. we call a halt.

"What about going in to see Becker?" I say.

"Good idea," agrees Albert. "Let's. That will make him talk, I bet!"

We spent a good part of our schooldays in Becker's shop. One could buy everything there almost: notebooks, drawing materials, butterfly nets, aquariums, collections of postage stamps, illustrated books and cribs with the answers to algebraic problems. We could sit for hours in Becker—it was here we used to smoke cigarettes on the sly. He was our great confidant.

ABASHED AT RECEPTION

We go in. A couple of schoolboys in a corner hastily hide away their cigarettes in the hollow of their hands. We smile and put on airs a little. A girl comes and asks what we want.

"We would like to speak to Herr Becker, if you please," I say. The girl hesitates. "I am I not attend to you?"

"No, Fraulein," I reply, "that you can't. Just call Herr Becker, will you?"

She goes off and we spruce ourselves up, thrusting our hands deep into our trousers pockets. That should fetch him!

We hear the old familiar tinkle of the office door opening and out comes Becker, little, gray and unkempt as ever. He blinks a moment. Then he recognizes us.

"Well, Birkhoi and Troske!" says he. "Back again, eh?"

"Yes," we say quickly, awaiting the outburst.

"That's fine! And what will you have?" he asks. "Cigarettes?"

We are taken aback and feel rather abashed. We didn't want to buy anything; that was not our idea.

"Yes," I say at last, "ten please."

He gives us them. "Well, till next time!" says he, and shuffles off. We stand there a moment. "Forgotten something?" he calls, from where he stands on the few steps.

"No, no," we answer and go. "Well!" I say, once we are outside. "He seems to think we've just been off on a bit of a walk!"

Albert makes a listless gesture. "Civilian beetle——"

Perhaps the Boy's Trouble Is Embarrassment

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl who has been deeply in love with a boy for over a year. I have known of him all my life, but I have just met him recently. He has been at me home from my girl friend's house and said he would see me soon. I haven't been out with him since. He speaks to me but, when my girl friend called him up to ask him if he knew me, he said he didn't. Will you please advise me what to do?

LONESOME ANN

Cheer up Lonesome Ann. My impression is that the young man was too embarrassed to admit he knew you. Next time you see him, you might mildly twit him for denying your acquaintance.

Lays Down the Law

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Two years ago I met a boy and went out with him. After a while he asked me to go "steady" with him for two years and then we would get married. About three months ago we had a quarrel over almost nothing. I gave him back his letters, but we made up again. He asked me to wait another year, and then get married. Now he tells me he will never marry, that he never loved me or any other girl. I still love him and he wants me to keep on going with him as there is no other girl he cares for. He is 20, and I am 20.

TWENTY

Dear Twenty: I can't understand your not having a little more pride in this matter. The young man seems to have pushed you around like a pawn on a chess board. Make up your mind what you want and stick to it. A girl without any independence of character very seldom holds her friends.

A BIG WELCOME

The pilots deserted Madge to walk the last strings as they to the airport; and though her curiosity was piqued she drove off without hearing the mysterious flier. The next day she asked Bill to introduce her to the flier.

"You don't want to meet him, Madge; he's not the kind of fellow for you to know. We don't know a thing about him."

Madge called [illegible] and that same afternoon she consented to meet the new flier in the lobby of the Malinsville Hotel. He was all that she had dreamed him to be—tall, dark and romantic.

"How about taking a little spin in it with me?" he asked. Madge Bill glared at Eric Stafford, the new flier, savagely. "I'd love to go, Mr. Stafford" But was a better flier than Eric more daring. First, he flew so coolly and on an even keel but when he looped back and saw that Madge was an experienced air passenger, he suggested doing stunts. At last Madge had the thrill of her lifetime. Coolly he slid into the airport with a perfect landing.

"You're the pluckiest girl I've ever met," he said admiringly.

"And you're the best flier—oh it was wonderful—too wonderful!"

But night at dinner Madge's father told her that he had had a call from Mr. Eric Stafford. "He says he represents the Air Race Committee, and that they are considering Malinsville as a stopping point in the coast-to-coast air races. It would be a fine thing for the town to put it on the map. He wants a guarantee of $25,000 for his committee, $5,000 cash payment now."

"Oh, Daddy, why don't you do it," said Madge. "As president of the Chamber of Commerce you could arrange for it easily."

A PERTINENT QUESTION

[illegible]

"Just what do you know about this Stafford fellow?" he asked. "I tried to look up his record and couldn't find anything. He might be a big bust, just a four-flusher for all you know."

"I know he's enough of a gentleman not to start unfounded rumors about other people."

RADIO REVIEW OF U. S.

Virginia First to Be Paid Homage

By N. F. T.

This unique plan of a leading American motor car manufacturer to salute our United States, one by one, is certainly a carefully worked out schedule. Progress, tradition, historical background and provincial customs characteristic of the people who reside within the boundaries of every state will be highlighted from week to week.

* * *

Virginia has been selected as the territory around which to weave the initial program at 9:30 p. m., Oct. 12. Bruce Barton, noted author, has written a colorful tribute to be delivered by Charles Webster, an actor well known for his eminent portrayals of the past.

WEEI INCLUDED

Boston and New England will hear the musical and dramatic presentation through the facilities of WEEI. An extensive NBC network will carry the air show originating at WRVA in the Old Dominion city of Richmond. There on the James river, in the southern community built on seven high hills, scenes of other days will be brought back for all the nation to hear.

Subsequent broadcasts, depicting historical and current happenings of note, will follow until the series has been completed.

Expected momentarily has been the announcement of Manhattan Mayor "Jimmy" Walker's first radio remarks on observations made by him during his recent sojourn across the sea. Now it comes, New York's dapper dandy is officiating tomorrow night during a dinner being given in honor of Maurice Chevalier. It all takes place at the Hotel Astor, next to Times sq., with WAAB distributing the program through New England air channels. George M. Cohan, Eddie Cantor, Jesse Lasky, Adolph Zukor, Walter Winchell and a host of other celebrities are expected to attend. Georg. Jessel has consented to do the master of ceremonying. Plans call for the broadcast to start at 9:30 p. m. and continue until 1:30 a. m.

GUM SHOE WORK

For his information of those who heard the four Mystery Singers last night (WBZ) at 8:15, they are now 75 per cent known. Upon learning the fourth fellow's identity, their names will be published here. You will then be surprised no little, wait and see.

Not only has the Marx program been changed from WBZ to WNAC and The Yankee Network, but the type of offering is also getting new treatment. This "conjoint" was in error stating the bit would take its first bow on Wednesday of next week. Tuesday is the evening and right there marks the third change visited upon this particular effort, formerly heard on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

TRAIL BLAZING

Linus Travers, producer of the new job, insists it is not to be a "kiddies' feature." Says Linus, "Candy cannot be sold to youngsters." All of which is interesting and lends added curiosity to the whole proposition. Maybe there's a new merchandising note to be struck.

Crooning Jack Miller, accompanist for Eddie Smith on the air, rated no long ago at one of our uptown theaters, is taking over three of the 11 p. m. spots vacated by Bing (CBS) Crosby. Bing is bound for greater glory by the celebrated 7 p. m. route.

* * *

Meanwhile, Tommy (night club) Maven wants the world to know he has unearthed a "find." Mr. Maven feels that Frankie Mack, tall and slim with light brown skin, is nothing short of a colored Bing Crosby. Listeners will be hearing the dusky boy soon shortly, just as soon as local station arrangements are completed.

Grace (NBC) Hayes is another stellar attraction this afternoon mentioned T. Maren brings to Boston Tuesday evening on the occasion of Cosmair Greve opening festivities. These doings will go either WNAC or WAAB at midnight.

Financial Market News and Comment

TODAY'S NEWS OF ACTIVE STOCKS

Stock market people who have maintained their equilibrium—and their resources—through the bear market now concede the limited possibilities for additional bearish profits. No one is prepared to swear that the bottom has been reached, but in many directions there is an entirely new attitude displayed toward stocks.

Bear With Millions Is Advising Buying

One dominant individual who amassed a huge fortune on the bear side—in addition to his previous millions—is advising purchase of carefully selected stocks. His buying is mainly on a scale downward.

Speculative Buying in Bonds Is Persistent

Those bears who have retired from active selling and are seeking lower from the market itself are most desirous for the bond market's display of stability. As a matter of fact, there is persistent speculative buying of bonds, the unanswered question with both bonds and stocks, today is how much additional liquidation is yet to be experienced.

Anaconda Is Seen in Better Position

Late revised estimates place Anaconda's current holding loss around $60,000,000, compared with a pressing debt of $47,500,000 at the end of 1930.

Woolworth Sold on British News

Disappointing market action of Woolworth during rallies in prices this week is considered by certain traders to concern over the British situation. This has to do with the depreciated value of the English pound and its effect on the revenues of Woolworth's English subsidiary. According to official sources, the money realized by the parent concern on the recapitalization of its foreign property is, with the exception of only about $2,000,000, on deposit in this country.

Chartists Are Left in Bewildered State

Advices from Canada indicate renewed nervousness over the prespect that the Canadian Pacific dividend payment. These despatches state quite a quantity of the stock has left the country owing to the steady decline in the foreign exchange value of the Canadian dollar. It is reported to be considering some relief measures, but whether action can be taken by the Dominion to ward placing its transportation system on a sound and profitable basis is a matter of conjecture.

Canadian Pacific Rumors Revived

Borden Liquidation Reported Still On

Reports have it in Wall Street that important liquidation is still in progress in Borden's.

Forced Selling Hurts Utilities

The recent break of utility stocks has been due in large measure to liquidation of a forced character. This finds support in the persistency of selling in the group during occasions this week when other issues were displaying a somewhat better tone. These rallies have invariably closed quite plainly that utilities did not harbor a short interest comparable to that in other sections of the list.

Political Attacks on Utilities Feared

Many market authorities still regard a number of utilities as selling at too high a ration in relation to the narrower spread existing elsewhere and are also somewhat apprehensive over possible legislative interference next year. Although utilities have not resorted to much wage cutting in the cost reduction campaign being pushed in other industries, the idea is spreading that some adjustments might be necessary in the not distant future, especially if earnings continue downward.

Los Angeles Gas Net Profit Rises

New York, Sept. 26.—Los Angeles Gas & Electric reports for 12 months ended Aug. 31 net income of $4,773,161 after interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization, against $4,725,780 in the preceding 12 months.

STOCK LEADERS OFF A LITTLE; MARKET DULL

New York, Sept. 26—Trading grew dull today on the New York Stock Exchange and resultant fluctuations were narrower than yesterday's.

A late flurry of selling gave the list a heavy tone at the finish. The market had a fair rally in the early trading, but there were numerous losses of a point or two at the close, with a few wider drops.

The bond market was quieter, and some of the foreign issues improved. In foreign exchanges sterling showed the best tone of the week, recovering about 10 cents, and at no time encountering severe pressure.

Several of the pivotal shares were well supported, and most closed only a little lower. U. S. Steel rose about a point, and American Can 2 in the early dealings. U. S. Steel was off a fraction and American Can down a fraction at the close.

Coca Cola again was a weak spot, dropping 8 points. Eastman lost as much. Union Pacific, Goodyear and Delaware & Hudson closed 3 to 4 lower.

American Telephone sold off about 3 points, then rallied one. Other issues closing a point or more lower included Allied Chemical, American Water Works, American Tobacco "B," Bethlehem Steel, Briden, General Motors, Drug, and International Harvester.

Internal bankers said foreigners were doing at least as much buying in this market as selling now, and barring unforeseen developments, the situation in Europe should make this market attractive to free foreign funds.

In one day this week, one banking house was said to have sold $500,000 worth of securities for foreign account, and bought 300,000

The turn-over in stock fell well below a million shares today, compared to 2,400,000 last Saturday.

Travel by Air in 2 Months Increases

New York, Sept. 26—Paying passengers carried by the United Air Lines during the past two months were approximately 23 per cent more than during two previous months and August slightly exceeded July, a record month, President P. G. Johnson says. United's operating subsidiaries are National, Boeing and Pacific Air Transport and Varney Air Lines.

Changes Narrow in Dealings on Curb

New York, Sept. 26—Changes were fairly narrow in curb and final dealings on the big curb. Trading was quiet. Electric Bond & Share led a first hour rally and then it sank back. Many of the issues of American Light & Traction was up about a point. Changes for other leaders were in minor fractions mostly.

Gilt Edge Shares Steady in London

London, Sept. 26—Gilt-edge shares were steady at the close of the market here today. Other issues were mostly somewhat lower with their declines attributed to action of the exchange governors in restricting dealing to a cash basis.

"Pennsy" Order Is for 30 Locomotives

New York, Sept. 26—The Lima Locomotive Works has received an order for 30 locomotives for Pennsylvania Railroad. The engines will be of the 2-8-2 type with driving wheels 62 inches in diameter and 52 feet over all.

Port of Boston News

By JAMES J. DELANEY

The largest consignment of burlaps taken out of India for more than a year is en route to Boston on the Brocklebank line steamer Marlboro from Calcutta, Bombay and Port Sudan. It is looked for here October 10.

The freighter carries 10,000 bales of burlap, besides large quantities of tea, rubber, hides and gunnies.

FRIDAY FISH

Wholesalers had a plentiful supply of fish to meet the heavy Friday demand with more than one-half million pounds receipted at the Fish Pier. Prices were kept at a normal level.

BARGE DAMAGED

The bottom of the barge Druid Hill, which ran aground in the Cape Cod Canal, while being towed to Boston from New York, is believed to be seriously damaged. When she arrived here Tuesday she was anchored on Bird Island flats. Since that time pumps have been kept in constant operation to keep her free of water. She was moved to Burton Furber's wharf yesterday, where enough of her cargo was taken out to lighten her. She was loaded with 1800 tons of coal.

ROUGH WEATHER

Two days of exceedingly rough weather marked the passage of the Yanks Line steamer Westerpool, which came in here from Hamburg and Bremen. It was reported by Capt. J. P. Thompson. Among the passengers was Samuel Ebling, United States vice consul at Bremen, here on leave of absence to visit his home in Bellefontaine, Ohio.

SAILS SUNDAY

A large list of Boston passengers are booked to sail on the steamer Britanic of the White Star Line, which leaves Commonwealth Pier tomorrow for Queenstown and Liverpool. Phillip L. Saltonstall heads a list of prominent Hub folk.

TOW BARGE

The barge Lawrence Howard was towed into Portland by the tug William G. Howard with her fresh water tanks leaking badly. The tug pumped fresh water from her own tanks aboard the barge. She proceeded to Philadelphia, with the Howard and the barge Buck Ridge in tow.

Congress for Beer?
Many Think So

Washington experts, "in a position to know," say Congress would legalize beer if President Hoover would recommend it.

There are enough gentlemen on the fence in both House and Senate to put beer over as an economic measure or on the plea of standing by the President, observers believe.

The Cabinet is for beer, 7 to 3, though of course it does not make the laws. It is, however, privileged to advise the President.

Many persons believe Mr. Hoover would come out for beer if he thought he would lose no votes by it. He would probably be glad to have the added revenue that a beer tax would provide. This revenue could amount to almost any sum you want to name, depending on the size of the tax. A billion dollars a year would be easily within the bounds of reason—and beer-drinkers would cheerfully pay it.

Then it would certainly help to relieve unemployment. The direct jobs might not be numerous, the indirect jobs would be. Manufacture, transportation, distribution, sales would mean many more at work than would be indicated by the actual number of brewery employes.

It would also cut the consumption of hard liquor. That would be all to the good, too.

A little nerve, a little action from the Administration—in this or one or two other matters—might well break the ice jam that the country is now in.

A little more principle, a little less "political expediency" might well start the current of recovery.

The majority of Americans would like to see the Administration pluck up its courage and take a chance on beer.

Slandering Our Veterans
Dr. Wilson's Attack Indignantly Resented

The Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson's vicious assault upon the American Legion, including our own fine men from New England, whom he characterized as a lot of "staggering drunks," will be indignantly resented by the good and fair-minded people of this country.

The assault was unwarranted in fact. It was a mean, unjustifiable slander.

These splendid men were not a lot of "staggering drunks" when they marched in solid phalanx beneath our common flag in the day of their country's peril. And, if they needed any defense whatsoever, it could be said that the experience of life plainly shows that the advance of adult years brings sobriety and firmer morals.

These men who bore the brunt of the awful war are the country's future hope in civil life.

Because they happen to disagree with this dismal experiment called prohibition, because they are convinced it has lavished evils upon the country they defended and because they propose that it be repealed by the orderly processes of government are not reasons why they should be vilified and abused.

We see the boisterous, professional, fanatical advocates of this failure called prohibition fly in a rage at the American Bar Association and the American Legion, two of the most important organizations in this country and which, in successive weeks, declare in solemn convention that it ought to be repealed and sanity and temperance restored.

Whom the Gods destroy, they first make mad.

The Other Fellow

Who is it gets the lucky breaks?
The other fellow!
Who never suffers from mistakes?
The other fellow!
Who owns the ball which hits a tree
And bounds upon the green for "three"
When in the woods it lost should be?
The other fellow.

Who always gets a brassie lie?
The other fellow.
Who couldn't lose if he should try?
The other fellow.
Who stabs a putt that shouldn't win,
Yards from the cup, but with a grin
Watches a worm cast knock it in?
The other fellow.

Who jumps the bunkers with his drive?
The other fellow.
Who is the luckiest man alive?
The other fellow.
Who out of bounds should often be,
But hits a fence post or a tree
And bounces back, and grins at me?
The other fellow.

And yet who swears the breaks are mine?
The other fellow.
Who thinks my best shots off the line?
The other fellow.
Who vows I've neither skill nor pluck,
And cites the time I hit a truck,
Bounced to the green, and called that luck?
The other fellow.

Capital Silhouettes

LET US HOPE that somewhere off in the great beyond William J. Bryan has learned of the bust-up on the gold standard in England.

* * *

UNITED STATES Steel doesn't seem to have been able to wait for the Chinko-Jappo war.

A MAGAZINE renders a timely service by publishing a long list of Senators and Congressmen who have given all the fat places at the public trough at the capitol to their relatives and in-laws. Mr. Gilbert, who has a line to fit very nearly every phase of life, has written one about the hoggish statesman:

"And I snap my fingers at a foeman's taunts.
(And so do his sisters, and his cousins and his aunts.)"

Is It All Froth?

Listen, World!
By Elsie Robinson

A Deserved Kick

I AM AMAZED, astounded, flabbergasted at that new talkie — "Smart Money." And tickled pink!

In it, as you may know, Edward Robinson plays the part of Nick the Barber"—the coarse, ignorant, swaggering, small-town gambler who becomes a Big Shot.

"Lucky at cards, unlucky with women" — that's the old saying about gamblers. It was true about Nick. He knew everything there was to be known about marked packs and loaded dice—but practically nothing about blondes. And you couldn't tell him. So, inevitably—

Elsie Robinson

However, before the blondes get him, Nick has his Big Moment.

The District Attorney is after him. The District Attorney is always after him. One ruse after another has failed to hang the evidence on Nick. Finally, one night, there comes to Nick's office, a lady —a queenly, golden creature in a bedazzling evening gown of sequins. Nothing as splendid as this has ever flashed upon Nick's vision. She is, as a matter of fact, simply another come-on. But, naturally, does not acquaint Nick with this fact. She has—she says—lost her last nickle at his gambling table. Will he lend her carfare home?

With characteristic grunts, wiggles, and smackings of lips, Nick listens—all aglow at this, his latest "conquest." Generously he gives her $500 "carfare," toasts her in champagne, makes a luncheon date, bows her out. Then, with his hand still caressing her jeweled arm, he raises his foot, plants it swiftly, firmly, on the lady's shimmering posterior and KICKS HER HEADLONG INTO THE CORRIDOR!

The audience gasps. For the first time, possibly, in American history, it sees a lovely lady kicked by a man. For an instant, all its chivalrous instincts are affronted. Then, overwhelmingly, the good old Yankee love of fair play asserts itself and the audience yelps with joy. The lady deserved that kick! She was a Bad Actor. Under the protection of the homage due her sex, she was about to take vicious advantage of a man's generosity. She got what was coming to her . . . the audience decided.

Yet many will not agree with that audience. They will be outraged because A Woman Was Kicked By A Man.

And, I suppose, as civilized people we should set our faces against violence in any form. But, if vicious crooks are ever to be repelled with kicks, why hesitate because the crook happens to be a female?

Actually, we harm the feminine sex more by protecting a bad woman than by giving her the wallop she deserves. For a bad woman brings disrespect on all women. By masquerading under the cloak of helplessness and refinement, she lays all helplessness and refinement open to suspicion.

But now, at least, one ample No. 11 has dealt this class of connivers a lusty blow. Edward Robinson has kicked a female exactly as he would have kicked a bad man. Incredible! As incredible as that Boston Tea Party. And I'll bet it makes us much history.

New York Day by Day

Doleful Tales

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—For a year now I've been listening to nothing but misery. Life has become a long moan. If a fellow believes all he hears, the end of civilization is at hand. In a short while, all of us will be starting all over again "from scratch."

Attend a dinner party and before the meat course, you'll learn it won't be long until we see Charlie Schwab, Pierp Morgan and the rest of the boys in workmen's blouses, swinging picks. And everybody who owns an automobile will be walking and liking it.

Upon awakening this morning I decided to spend the day trying to brighten up the world a bit. Reaching for the phone I called up Ray Long. "Well," I began putting the well known cherio in the voice, "how are things with you this extraordinarily lovely day?"

"Who is this?" he asked with obvious irritation. I told him. "You must have gone screwie," he said, and hung up in my ear. That wasn't a hot start. Yet lives there a man with a soul so dead, no, that's not it. That's from a poem or something, isn't it?

What I mean to say is everybody, with a new idea meets rebuffs. The thing to do is to be undaunted. That's what's wrong with the world. Every other person you meet is slightly daunted. So I went about dressing with a hum and a skip. Like this—tra, la, la, ping, tra, la, la ping.

That ping represents lighting on tip toe after skipping. Some people prefer skish in trying to translate the noise of skipping into a word. But I belong to the ping school. Not that I have anything against skish people. It's a viewpoint anyway.

As a matter of fact one of the most engaging ladies I ever met was a skish devotee. She had married a Turk, Mr. Korapatkahoff. In Turkish what we call skish or ping is twopiegy. This has nothing to do with cheering up the world, but more and more, I'm trying to sneak in stuff that will make my stuff educational.

After complimenting my wife on her appearance at breakfast — at which she bestowed a swift suspicious glance—praising the cook for the scrambled eggs, giving the dogs extra pats, I set off for a walk, puffed with the cheerful afflatus that this was the best of possible worlds and everything was going to be perfectly dandy, yes sir.

I even stopped at Irene Haye's for a lapel flower to give an outward spark of inner optimism. There is a dear friend in a side street hotel who has jelled into a chronic gloom. Once the life of the party, he now suggests an undertaker's assistant. I called his room from the lobby and was told to come up. When he opened the door, I wreathed my face in a big smile, clapped his shoulder and cried: "Old boy, it is certainly one of those days! Great to be alive." Then rubbing my hands in a glow of well being, strutted up and down the room, expanding, beaming and snapping my suspenders!

After a while he said: "I knew it couldn't last." I asked what. "This water wagon pose of yours. It isn't 10 in the morning and you're pie-eyed and running around with a flower in your coat—"

I had to remain a half hour to prove utter sobriety. I told him we had been wallowing in despair long enough. Dark clouds were breaking. Happiness was around the corner and throwing aside the window curtain with a dramatic fling exclaimed: "Gaze at a world flooded with sunshine." Despite my enthusiasm, he replied: "Listen, mug, you may be a sucker for this joke called living. But I've been trying for six months to get in the way of an automobile or make a fall down an elevator shaft look accidental. Anyway, if you feel so up and upish about everything, stop on your way out and tell my landlord not to worry, you are sending him a check for my year's board bill."

* * *

With so much cold water smack in the pan, it is difficult to carry on. But I made one more stab. Passing a cop at the corner I decided to perk up his monotonous existence. "Well, commissioner," I called, "this is one of the days when all the world seems kin." He sneered: "You're telling me! And I've just been transferred to the outskirts of Stapleton, Staten Island." Anyway, how have you been?

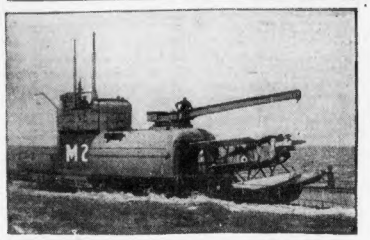
Submarines With Planes
England Corrects an Error and Goes Forward in Naval Defense



TAKING THE AIRPLANE OUT OF ITS WATER-TIGHT HANGAR ON BOARD THE BRITISH SUBMARINE M-2

This is the submarine, which a few months ago lay in a naval dockyard a curiosity and a failure. It was one of four built during the World War. Each was equipped with a 12-inch gun.

It was believed that these heavily armed submarines might stealthily approach a foe and disable it with a few shots.

The great weight of the guns and the turrets made the submarines hard to maneuver. Two of the ships were broken up, one was lost at sea, the last one, the M-2, was put aside in the dockyard and everyone forgot about it.

It was not forgotten, however, by the British Admiralty, that department of the government which has supreme charge of England's naval affairs.

While England's statesmen and Parliament have been struggling to bring order out of her economic and political situation, the men who are responsible for her naval leadership have been working in secrecy.

The accompanying picture shows the M-2 as she looks today. Her 12-inch rifle and heavy gun turret have been replaced with a compact, water-tight hangar in which nests a high speed scout plane.

Naval authorities are not prepared to say much except that the submarine, as it is equipped today, has come through her tests successfully.

In quiet waters, the undersea boat rises to the surface, the crew climbs out of the conning tower hatch; men run forward and open the hangar. The seaplane is brought out, her wings, which are folded back, are extended and locked into position.

The pilot gets in, the propeller spins and the tiny seaplane is catapulted into the air.

When the airplane returns to the submarine she is swung onto the deck by a small crane. The crew slips it back into the hangar. The submarine submerges and proceeds on her journey.

This is the only submarine in the world carrying an airplane all assembled, ready to go into action. It is the hope of English naval experts that airplane-carrying submarines like the M-2 will prove practical in fleet operations in which battleships, cruisers and destroyers are used.

They believe that a boat like the M-2 will be able to come close to an enemy fleet, rise to the surface, launch the scout plane and submerge again while the ship in the air spots the exact location of the enemy. The information brought back to the submarine would be radioed to the larger vessels which then would move to the attack.

Defense authorities and experts KNOW THAT AIRPLANES ARE ESSENTIAL TO ANY MILITARY OR NAVAL BODY. Today, airplane-carriers go to sea with dozens of planes of the bombing and pursuit types. Our own U. S. S. Akron carries five fighting planes which can be released and picked up while in flights.

An interesting description of this new undersea airplane-carrier appears in the American Weekly in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

PAINTING HIS PICTURES UNDER WATER

A rubber hose, goggles, a clothespin, lead shoes, a long dagger, a copper plate and stylus are the tools of M. Cheverlange, the marine artist in his South Seas "studio" underneath the water.

All his subjects are painted from life in their natural setting at the bottom of the ocean.

The rubber hose, goggles and clothespin allow him to breathe and see while working; the lead shoes keep him down on the bottom; with the stylus he sketches on the copper plate which is smeared with black paint; with the dagger he gives battle to a shark or barracuda when attacked, as he often has been.

M. Cheverlange is a brave man. He has won the Croix de Guerre, the Cross of Saint George and the Medaille Militaire. He is a distinguished artist. He is the only artist to capture the colorful beauty of tropical marine life.

A reproduction of one of his marine paintings appears in tomorrow's American Weekly in the Boston Sunday Advertiser with a story of how he makes his pictures.

League Court Judges

World Court judges, appointed by the League of Nations to "administer" international justice, remain the servants of their own governments.

So warns the Cincinnati Enquirer in an editorial on the Austro-German customs union decision. The Enquirer said:

"Unmistakably, there is evidence here of judges voting in terms of their own nations. If we rule out the judges whose own governments were closely interested in the controversy—that is, Germany, France, Poland and Rumania—the decision would have been favorable to the customs union instead of unfavorable.

"This cannot fail to be something of a blow to the prestige of the World Court."

The Baltimore Evening Sun—which had been an advocate of the League Court—used even blunter language. It called the League Court decision "the product of partisan judges who voted like ordinary politicians for the boys back home."
